Howdy, sir. Just wanted to confirm that administration officials can speak at banquets/fundraisers such as the one below as long as: 1) they are not listed in the promotional material and 2) they don't use their official administration title. Correct?

Oct. 12 - Washington DC

Dear Friends and Colleagues:

On Saturday, October 12, 2002, the Center for the Study of Islam & Democracy

(CSID) will host a fundraising banquet and a panel discussion raising the challenging question: "Does Islam Need a Reformation?". We hope you can join us and please invite as many friends and colleagues as possible. The panelists will include:

* Dr. Akbar S. Ahmed, Ibn Khaldun Chair of Islamic Studies, American University

* Dr. Abdulaziz Sachedina, Dept. of Religious Studies, University of Virginia

* Mr. Grover Norquist, President, Americans for Tax Reform

* Dr. Judith Kipper, Co-director, Middle East Program, Center for Strategic and International Studies

What: Banquet & Panel Discussion on "Does Islam Need a Reformation?"

Where: Grand Hyatt Hotel, 1000 H St., NW, Washington, DC 20002

Independence Ballroom E

(Metro Center subway station, exit towards 11th street and you will enter the hotel from the Metro stop.)

The hotel offers valet parking at the front and self park is located on the 10th street side.

When: 7:00PM to 9:00PM, Saturday October 12, 2002

Alex Kronemer will be showing a sneak preview of the upcoming PBS documentary: "Mohammed: Legend of A Prophet." Be among the first to see it.
