CABINET REPORT

FOR THE WEEK OF MAY 2, 2005

FRIDAY, APRIL 29, 2005
(202) 456-2572

- Update: Lawsuit Challenging No Child Left Behind (NCLB) as an Unfunded Mandate
 On April 20, the National Education Association (NEA), several school districts in Michigan, Texas, and Vermont, and a number of state and local NEA affiliates filed a lawsuit challenging NCLB as an unfunded mandate. Plaintiffs allege that the NCLB is under-funded and that states and school districts have “had to use non-NCLB funds to comply with the NCLB mandates, diverting those funds from other educational programs and priorities.” The Department of Education’s Office of General Counsel is working with the Justice Department to respond to this lawsuit.
- Update: Return to Flight
 NASA has decided to postpone the launch of STS-114 currently slated for May 22. NASA is taking the time needed to ensure it gets Return to Flight right. Based on recent discussions, NASA has decided it needs more time to do additional analysis on potential debris hazards. This is an effort to verify and validate the hours and hours of testing NASA has done to this point. This is a prudent move that demonstrates the diligence in working toward Return to Flight. The next launch window opens up on July 13 and goes until July 31.
- Update: Nuclear Waste Disposal Lawsuit
 The Sacramento Municipal Utility District (SMUD) is suing the United States for damages to recover costs incurred due to the Department of Energy’s failure to begin accepting spent nuclear fuel in 1998. On April 21, the U.S. Court of Federal Claims ordered parties to show cause why the waste disposal contract between SMUD and the government should not be voided and all payments made to the Nuclear Waste Fund returned. Briefs from both parties are due by June 20. This case is one of 66 lawsuits filed concerning the government's partial breach of contract to begin accepting spent nuclear fuel in 1998. While the Court’s opinion would only be binding in the SMUD case, if this approach were extended to all waste disposal contract lawsuits, it could result in the cancellation of most of the existing contracts, the refund of approximately $12 billion from the Nuclear Waste Fund, and substantial uncertainty for the future disposal of commercial spent fuel from nuclear power plants.
- 60 Stops in 60 Days Tour Wraps Up
 May 1, marks day 60 of the 60 Stops in 60 Days tour. Since March 3, Administration officials have participated in 166 events in 40 states, given more than 500 radio interviews in all 50 states, participated in 61 town hall meetings with 30 members of Congress in their home districts, and placed op-eds and letters to the editor in local and national newspapers with an estimated total circulation of 7.94 million. Secretary Snow and Treasury Department officials have logged more than two dozen of these stops and given more than 75 radio interviews.
- H-1B Visa Reform Act (VRA) Regulation Publication
 Within the next week, the Department of Homeland Security anticipates the publication by U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Service (CIS) of the H-1B regulation. This regulation implements the provisions of the H-1B Visa Reform Act (VRA) signed by the President in December 2004. The VRA added an additional 20,000 to the numerical limit of 65,000 aliens who may receive an H-1B visa or status during the fiscal year. This 20,000 is limited to those aliens who received a master’s or higher degree from a U.S. institution. The regulation describes how CIS will process and count the additional 20,000 and has received significant public and congressional attention.

The Conference is an annual gathering of 500-800 government, business, and private organization leaders, and is expected to highlight Presidential Initiatives, including the Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief. On May 3, Secretary Johanns will be the keynote speaker and announce allocations for $91 million in foreign assistance under the USDA's FY 2005 McGovern-Dole International Food for Education and Child Nutrition Program. This assistance will feed more than 3 million children in 15 developing countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America and Eastern Europe. Also, USAID Administrator Natsios will address the Conference and discuss the International Disaster and Famine Assistance (IDFA) account set to begin in FY 2006, and U.S. Global AIDS Coordinator, Ambassador Randall Tobias, will stress the connection between food security and the fight against the HIV/AIDS pandemic.

However, no surprises are expected to come from this report.

- Food Security Assessment Report

In a report scheduled for a May 3 release, USDA's Economic Research Service will report that just over one billion people in the 70 low-income countries studied are estimated to have consumed less than the recommended nutritional requirements in 2004. This marks an increase from more 830 million in 2003. Over the coming decade, food security is projected to improve most significantly in Asia, followed by Latin America and the Caribbean. The situation is expected to deteriorate in Sub-Saharan Africa, where deep poverty, political unrest, and the effects of HIV/AIDS hinder prospects for improvement.

- The Associated Press Suing Government to Obtain Guantanamo Documents

On April 19, The Associated Press (AP) sued DOD seeking the government release of transcripts and other documents related to military hearings for Guantanamo Bay detainees. The Federal lawsuit states that the AP has been able to report only anecdotally on 558 tribunals conducted since August to let detainees challenge their incarceration at the Cuban base. The lawsuit asked the court to order the government to turn over transcripts of all Guantanamo detainees' testimony, along with written statements by the detainees and any documents they have submitted. The AP submitted a Freedom of Information Act request in the fall, but it said DOD has refused to provide the documents and has not processed the company's appeal of the government's failure to act. The AP's lawsuit said it was told in March that the government would begin turning over documents in "waves," beginning the first week of April. The suit said, the AP was told the government would not begin reviewing and redacting the documents until this week. This story was covered by The AP.
