The Honorable R. James Nicholson
Secretary
Department of Veterans Affairs
810 Vermont Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20420

Dear Secretary Nicholson:

We are writing to you in support of the use of the Pennhurst property as the future site of the Southeastern Pennsylvania veterans cemetery and urge your strong consideration of the site as you finalize your site determination pursuant to the applicable legislation.

Specifically, the Pennhurst property is much more desirable to the residents and veterans of Chester, Montgomery, Berks and Delaware Counties, first and foremost, because of its centrality and accessibility to the region. Pennhurst, located on the northern edge of Chester County, is just minutes from Berks and Montgomery County, is a short drive from Delaware County, and it provides the most convenient burial option in our region for our veterans and their families. It is located a couple of miles off of Route 422, which directly connects to most of the major interstates in Southeastern Pennsylvania, and avoids some of the most congested and heavily traveled roads in our region that surround the City of Philadelphia.

In contrast, the Dolington property in Upper Makefield presents enormous challenges to residents in our counties as they make the trip across the region to the farthest eastern part of Southeastern Pennsylvania, often navigating extremely congested and heavily traveled roadways. While we understand the cemetery will also service parts of New Jersey, that state's residents unlike the five counties surrounding Philadelphia, already have an accessible and convenient state veterans cemetery to serve their residents. Choosing Dolington would neglect the portion of the region that currently has the most need for a new veterans cemetery and many would unfortunately continue to make the trek to Fort Indiantown Gap which would remain more convenient than the edge of Bucks County.

The support for a cemetery at Pennhurst is overwhelming. Numerous officials and organizations throughout our counties have declared their support for the Chester County location, as has the Pennsylvania State Veterans Commission. Many statewide officials have also endorsed Pennhurst as the preferred location, including Governor Rendell, the State Adjutant General and numerous state senators and representatives. The only support for the Dolington property comes from within Bucks County.

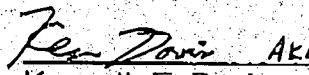

We understand the responsibility of the Department of Veterans Affairs to make a sound decision. That decision must take into account several factors, including availability, cost and input by the veterans and officials in the region. That being said, it is our understanding that the Pennsylvania Department of General Services has made the Pennhurst property available immediately at a lower price than what was asked for Dolington. Therefore we believe that all of the factors weigh clearly in favor of Pennhurst as the future site of the veterans cemetery in Southeastern Pennsylvania.

We hope that you will carefully consider our views as you continue to weigh your decision. Thank you for your interest and keep up the great job you are doing.

Sincerely,

Dear President Bush:

Thank you for your Christmas card, the two male Supreme court nominees, and your pursuit of the War on Terror. The latter could prove to be remarkable diplomatic feat in time, but your failure to confront China on her currency manipulation, unethical observance of patent infringement, slave labor, environmental abuse, and miserable human rights record, may be your undoing!

I wonder if anyone within the beltway has ANY idea of the human carnage the average guy and gal is suffering today. It only is getting worse as the clips I have included would indicate. The "hollowing out" of the middle class CANNOT support a free society, or the Republic we have known.

Of course China is critical to the 6 party talks with South Korea, but let us not pussyfoot around with these people, they are cunning as hell, and let Condi Rice let them damn well know we are on to them - before our entire Nation is subordinate! Far too many industrialists don't give a damn about our future, only the immediate bottom line!

GET TOUGH WITH THEM AND DO IT NOW!

Cuts expected in Ford's restructuring

BRYCE G. HOFFMAN
Detroit News

DEARBORN, MICH. — Ford Motor Co. executives plan to present a restructuring plan to the company's board of directors today that calls for closing at least 10 assembly and component plants and eliminating 25,000 to 30,000 hourly jobs in North America within five years, according to people familiar with the plan.

The planned cuts are deeper than many expected, signaling the urgency of Chairman and CEO Bill Ford Jr.'s push to restore the automaker's ailing North American operations.

Bill Ford has promised the impending cuts, expected to be announced Jan. 23, will affect all levels of the company. The automaker will announce the departure of as many as seven top executives by Jan. 23, according to those familiar with the plan.

The broad outlines of Ford's plan — dubbed the "way forward" — were approved by directors during an off-site meeting in October with top executives in South Carolina.

In meetings today and Thursday, Mark Fields, Ford's new president of the Americas division, will walk board members through the fine points, including budget projections for 2006 and 2007, capital expenditure requests and other details. He also will present his blueprint for revitalizing the Ford, Mercury and Lincoln brands, which includes a new strategy to attract young buyers.

"That scale of action by Ford would be perceived as a very aggressive right-sizing move and would go a long way toward Ford getting its cost structure back in line with its much-diminished market share," said Glenn Reynolds, an analyst with Credit Sights, a New York-based research firm.

Ford would not comment on its plans. "Our work continues," said spokesman Oscar Suris.

The plan calls for closing at least 10 assembly and component plants over the next five years. Sources familiar with the plan said the decision about which plants to close has not been finalized, adding that Ford may announce only a few specific plant closings in January.

Even as Detroit braces for big job cuts at General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co., demand for automotive engineers and students coming out of engineering schools is perking up around the Motor City, buoyed by Asian automakers who want to develop more products for the U.S. market.

The new R&D center belongs to Hyundai Motor Co. — one of the very Asian automakers whose competitive pressures have helped drive Detroit into its biggest crisis since the early 1990s.

Steve Miller stood side by side with dignitaries to cut the ribbon for a $68 million, state-of-the-art automotive engineering center.

The world's largest computer chip maker, and J.P. Morgan global investment banker, said Monday that they would significant operations to India, an indication that more high-value work is moving there. Intel, based in Santa Clara, Calif., will invest more than $1 billion in India over the next two years, of which $800 million will go to expanding its research and development center in Bangalore, India, said the company's chief executive officer, Craig Barrett. Intel's Bangalore center employs around 1,000 engineers who design and develop products. J.P. Morgan Chase & Co. it would add 4,500 employees in India by 2007, mainly in investment banking and derivatives businesses globally. The company's India operations are the size of its India operations. All 4,500 of J.P. Morgan's current employees in India are based in Bombay. The bank plans to hire 35 equity researchers in India to support its operations on Wall Street. "In our experience, we have found high-quality, low-cost staff in India, and we want to continue investing in the country," said Michael Golden, a spokesman for the bank based in London. "The investment is about meeting the needs of our business and not about shipping jobs from the United States."

TURING orders 150 Airbus jets

China ordered 150 Airbus single-aisle A320 airliners Monday, twice as many plane orders as the company's U.S.-based parent, Boeing Co. snagged from China last month. The European aircraft manufacturer said the deal was worth nearly $10 billion, the largest single order that Airbus has ever received in the Chinese market two decades ago. The order was announced during President Bush's visit to China last month of 70 Boeing jets during a visit by President Bush. At list prices, that deal was worth $4 billion. Until now, Chicago-based Boeing has won 10 percent of new plane orders from China, with Airbus taking one-third. Backed by a high-level French diplomatic offensive, Airbus has been pushing to increase its presence in China, one of the world's fastest-growing markets for air travel.

House of Representatives

Commonwealth of Puerto Rico

José F. Aponte - Hernández
Speaker

January 3, 2006

The Honorable George W. Bush
President
United States of America
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., N.W.
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President:

The report issued a few days ago by your White House Task Force on Puerto Rico's Status is making history, but not in a sudden or noisy way. As expected, there has been some bluster and hand-wringing by those who believe the truth has been spoken at the expense of their ideology. But over time, the principle of government by consent of the governed will be redeemed in Puerto Rico in a very determined and deliberate way.

That is because the report tells the truth in a fair and simple way concerning the terms for continuing the current territorial status with the commonwealth model of local self-government. If that should be what Congress decides based on the freely expressed will of the residents of the territory, after the options for non-territorial status have been duly considered, then at least it will not be because the right of self-determination has been denied.

The policy set forth in the Task Force report also confirms the legitimacy of statehood as a model for territorial status resolution. Similarly, the report affirms that there is a model for an orderly process of territorial succession to separate nationhood, if that be the will of the nation and the residents of the territory. That includes the possibility of a treaty based free association, terminable by either party, consistent with the right of all sovereign peoples to independence.

The Administration could have repeated the same old platitudes about supporting whatever the voters decide, but under your leadership the Task Force recognized that no real choice is possible without informed self-determination. So you chose to do the hard unfinished work of democracy in America.

At a time when Americans from Puerto Rico are fighting terrorism so people in foreign countries can vote for their national leaders, it was morally necessary for the Task Force to tell the truth about how that right also can be extended to this territory.

The truth is not pro-statehood, pro-independence, or pro-commonwealth. It is the truth, and God has given us the freedom to tell it and decide how best to use it. Your Administration has spoken the truth plainly and yet profoundly. Now it is up to Congress and the 3.8 million U.S. citizens of Puerto Rico to put it to good use in service to the national interest.

Thanks you for your courageous leadership of our nation.

Sincerely,

~~José E. Aponte-Hernández~~

Dear Mr. President:

I am enclosing a request from Senator Trent Lott and Senator Paul Sarbanes asking if you would greet the members of the 44th Annual United States Senate Youth Program when they are here in March.

These 104 high school students will be in Washington during the week of March 4-March 11, 2006, and are scheduled to visit the White House on the morning of Thursday, March 9. However, they would change their schedule during that week for any opportunity to meet you.

The delegates are selected by the top education officials in each state, the District of Columbia and the Defense Department schools. They are student leaders and academic stars -- and they represent the next generation of our nation's leadership. I know they would be thrilled if you would greet them sometime during their week.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Encl.

The President
The White House
Washington, D. C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

The 44th Annual United States Senate Youth Program will be held in Washington, D.C. — March 4 through 11, 2006. This weeklong educational experience brings together 104 outstanding high school juniors and seniors for an intensive study of the people and machinery of the American governing system.

We understand that you deeply honored the 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004 and 2005 classes when you met with them during their visits to the White House. In so doing, you continued a 43-year tradition — joining nine different Presidents of the United States who have met with student leaders of this unique program of the United States Senate.

As the Co-Chairs for this the 2006 program, we wish to invite you to meet with the 44th class on Thursday morning, March 9th. We have requested a formal tour of the White House at 10:30 that morning through the Office of the White House Visitors. In the past four years, we understand this time has been convenient for you to greet the delegates. As in past years, we know these bright student delegates will carry your important message home to their schools and communities across America.

For White House scheduling information, we wish to mention two major events on Capitol Hill in the historic Senate Caucus Room: the traditional Leadership Lunch with Senator Frist and Senator Reid on Thursday, March 9th, 12:30 to 2:30 p.m., and the Annual Senate Reception on Wednesday, March 8th, between 5:00 and 7:00 p.m.

The chief educational officer in each state selects the delegates — two from each state, the District of Columbia and the Department of Defense Education Activity. In addition to outstanding leadership abilities and a strong commitment to volunteer work, the students rank academically in the top one percent of their states. They continue to excel and develop impressive qualities that are often directed toward public service. We are proud that among the many distinguished former program delegates are Senator Susan Collins of Maine, the first program delegate elected to the Senate; Judge Robert Henry, U.S. Court of Appeals; former Ambassador to West Germany Richard Burt; Presidential Advisor Karl Rove and former Presidential Advisor Thomas "Mack" McLarty. Additional distinguished alumni are former Lt. Governor of Idaho David LeRoy, U.S. Attorney for New Jersey Christopher Christie, military officers, Foreign Service Officers, members of State Legislatures, top Congressional staff, healthcare providers and university educators.

As well as a visit to the White House, the students will attend briefings and meetings with Senators, Cabinet members and federal agency leaders during Washington Week. This in-depth exposure is precisely what fuels and sustains their commitment to make a difference in their country, communities and schools.

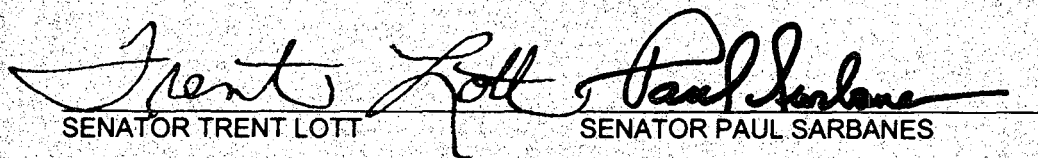

The William Randolph Hearst Foundation has fully funded this program since its inception in 1962, including transportation, accommodations, meals and individual $5,000 college scholarships for each of the 104 students.

The program director, Rita Almon, is in the process of arranging the full Washington Week agenda. Please contact her — 800-841-7048 — if a member of your staff has any questions or wishes to discuss your participation.

We hope you will accept our invitation, and we thank you for your gracious support of this youth program authorized by Resolution of the United States Senate.

With best wishes, we are

Respectfully,

SENATOR TRENT LOTT SENATOR PAUL SARBANES

EXEC. DIR. PRESIDENT
WW STRATEGIC INITIATIVES

Date: December 13, 2005

2006 JAN -4 AM 8: 58

To: Karl Rove, Deputy Chief of Staff
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20500

From: Alyson Mount
Metairie, Louisiana

I am writing this letter to you to plea on behalf of the residents and citizens of the New Orleans metropolitan area to reconsider your position of not providing federal funding to Entergy New Orleans, Inc. There is growing sentiment among our citizens that the current Administration has forgotten the devastation caused by Hurricane Katrina. As a tax paying, voting American I am writing to express my concerns over the position, either implicit or explicit, that the Administration has taken with respect to this issue.

The correspondence with Allan Hubbard, Chairman, Gulf Coast Recovery and Rebuilding Council has been reported in the local news. The reports on this correspondence indicate that the federal government is providing disaster relief in other areas but will not include federal funding to Entergy New Orleans, the local utility company, because Entergy New Orleans is owned by Entergy Corporation, a large investor owned utility and has separate bond holders and shareholders that should bear the risk and results of Katrina. Without going into details about how each Entergy company effectively stands on its own for financing and rate purposes, it suffices to say that this is a very upsetting position for most of the residents of the city and state to hear. First, it seems totally inconsistent that the Administration would take this position for damage resulting from Katrina while Consolidated Edison and Verizon, both investor owned companies, were appropriated significant funds for assistance after September 11, to, among other things, restore the utility infrastructure damaged by, and for economic revitalization directly related to the 9/11 attack. This position is one that makes me shake my head in disbelief and one that makes me want to ensure that those elected or appointed officials that are in support of this total inconsistency in position will be vehemently opposed in future elections via my personal vote in each and every election in which I have the appropriate standing to vote. Electricity is of the most basic of needs and we need Entergy New Orleans to be able to meet that need for the metropolitan New Orleans area to recover.

The Administration is constantly having to support the amount of funds directed toward the war on terror and probably wonders why people question their strategy. The position taken on Katrina and then differing position after 9/11 is one prime example of what upsets Americans so much. It emphasizes the concern across the country that the Administration cares less about what is happening at home versus overseas. We can all appreciate that the war on terror has the intent of protecting us all from terrorists. But this initiative and effort has to be balanced with real, current and significant needs of its citizens such as the devastation caused by Katrina. Most of the metropolitan New Orleans population has been displaced by the storm but if, and when they return, they will face extremely high utility bills as a result of the need for Entergy New Orleans to recover its prudently incurred costs. This issue will be a determining factor in how many people do indeed return to the city and whether Entergy New Orleans will be able to recover financially from Katrina. Entergy New Orleans' has experienced real and significant financial issues as evidenced by the recent filing of a Chapter 11 petition for bankruptcy. The citizens of the city and state are not supportive of municipalizing the utility because we believe that Entergy has done and would continue to do an amazing job of restoring power as a result of the storms – restoring approximately 1 million customers to service for those who could receive service in an incredible timeframe of less than 50 days. However it is very surprising to me that if the utility were a municipality it would be eligible for federal funds – although the financing and rate structure would be virtually identical if the utility were owned by the city of New Orleans versus Entergy. My personal opinion is that if the utility were run by the city, although the financial structure of the utility would likely be the same, that service and reliability would suffer greatly and the weary and bruised citizens of New Orleans and the surrounding areas do not need that right now.

New Orleans is a great city. Despite the scars of Katrina and the negative press of its citizens and its politics, it is a beautiful city. It has deep roots and history. The Louisiana Purchase opened exploration to what is now most of the United States. It would be a tragedy for the President to broadcast, from Jackson Square, one of the city's landmarks and the site of the celebration of the Louisiana Purchase, that the Administration would do whatever it takes to restore and rebuild the city, and for that promise to go unfulfilled. We are telling you what we need and asking and pleading for help. Entergy New Orleans met its obligations during Katrina – and Rita. We are proud of them and we need them and we are asking you to help them. And we, as voting Americans, will take note and hold you accountable in future elections for your actions.

Sincerely,

December 14, 2005

Congr. Frank Wolf
241 Cannon Bldg.
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Congr. Wolf:

Today's Washington Post printed the article "Immigration Pushes Apart GOP, Chamber". I am VERY DISTURBED that the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Restaurant Association, the Associated General Contractors of America, et al. oppose legislation critically needed to address the out-of-control illegal immigration issue that is literally contributing to the destruction of America.

I urge you to SUPPORT legislation that aggressively addresses the immigration issues that confront this great Nation. It disgusts me that some organizations place a higher value on their short-term profits at the expense of our National welfare! And I am NOT pleased with our political leaders in the Executive and Legislative Branches who are failing to take action that, quite frankly, is critically needed now.

Our unsecured borders and illegal immigration are the most serious domestic issues facing the United States. This must be addressed VERY AGGRESSIVELY and IMMEDIATELY! Our culture, security, economy, and quality of life are at stake.

Some say it is an economic necessity that this great Nation "look the other way" while illegal immigrants flood into our Country. That argument isn't founded on the TRUE and HONEST FACTS of the matter. If businesses must pay higher wages to some workers, and the consumer pays a small increase for goods and services, that is MORE than OFFSET by the LONG TERM benefits to our society, e.g. GREATER PROSPERITY for all Americans, HIGHER TAX RECEIPTS at the Federal, State, and local levels, a DECREASE in the gap between the "rich" and the "poor" which is increasing due to immigration, greater SECURITY for our great Nation, DECREASE COSTS to our society for welfare, education, medical payments, to name only a few.

I am VERY UNHAPPY with this President, as well as previous Presidents, who lack the political courage and insight needed to address this critically important issue. History will record their failures, and our great Nation will suffer the consequences. It is a tragedy unfolding before our eyes. Where is the courage and boldness needed to address this issue? It most definitely WON'T be found among the selfish and short-sighted interest groups that DON'T have the best interest of America on THEIR agenda!

I very strongly urge you to SUPPORT legislation that VERY AGGRESSIVELY addresses our immigration problem in this Country!

Sincerely,

Michael Hunt

Subject: MESSAGE TO KARL ROVE - FROM WIRTHLIN

Karl:

Hope you are well. As you may have heard, Wirthlin Worldwide and Harris Interactive merged in January, thus the reason for the name change.

Dr. Wirthlin asked that I contact you regarding some information we are working on. If you could point me to the right person for this, that would be helpful.

We are working to create a common, global platform whereby all tracking-based market research would be structured and fed into. Think of this at a systems level and where all data moves seamlessly in a common platform. Questionnaires can be common across stakeholder types of "core metric" questions, but then flex with new sections for certain key audiences. Poor ratings (based on whatever one would set) would trigger an alert to the user and initiate a follow-up action. Charting and data tables could be posted via desktop for easy use or housed in a central web-based environment. There is a lot more complexity, but at a simple, strategic level you probably see what we are trying to create.

Dick created something like this for The White House in the 80s, but at a crude level.

I know this sounds somewhat abstract (more so in writing), but we were hoping that if anyone had tried to do this in today's technology it would be you. We were thinking you could help with any new ideas or ways in which the campaign or WH does something similar. Perhaps if you could share any "best practices" in this area or at a very high level the design architecture of how this may have been developed/used.

I left word with Ken Mehlman as well to see if he was aware of anything.

Please feel free to call me at the below numbers if it would be easier to talk this through in a few minutes. Thanks for the help,

Mike

CURT L. HEBERT, JR.
EXECUTIVE VICE-PRESIDENT

November 16, 2005

The Honorable Allan B. Hubbard
Director, National Economic Council
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. Hubbard,

I appreciate the time taken by you and others on the White House staff to discuss issues affecting the restoration and rebuilding of New Orleans.

Based on your comments during yesterday's meeting, I have informed Dan Packer, President and CEO of Entergy New Orleans, that the Bush Administration is opposed to any form of Federal assistance, whether direct or indirect, to electric and gas consumers within the City of New Orleans. I am gravely disappointed in the Administration's decision to apply narrow, free market considerations so strictly as to refuse to provide the City of New Orleans or Entergy New Orleans with Federal disaster assistance, as the consumers in the City will suffer significantly as a result, and I believe that everyone there has suffered enough.

I believe that the approach taken yesterday by the Administration is fundamentally flawed and one-sided. Particularly troubling is that the Administration's approach repudiates the promise made by the President during his nationally telecast remarks from Jackson Square in New Orleans on September 15, that the Administration would "do what it takes" and "stay as long as it takes to help citizens rebuild their communities and their lives."

I also want to state clearly that I disagree with your regrettable sentiment that Entergy's shareholders and bondholders are not relevant. Shareholders and bondholders have invested in a regulated utility with the knowledge that the government regulates and protects their opportunity to earn a return. Unlike electric generation, the local distribution system represents a regulatory compact between the investor-owned utility and the government that requires the utility to provide universal and reliable electric and gas service regardless of circumstance. Crushing shareholders and bondholders would not only make a difficult situation worse and dishonor the regulatory compact, it will increase the capital costs (for both equity and debt) of every other utility, as investors will require additional and significant compensation for the associated risk.

The situation in New Orleans is unique - no major American city has ever been evacuated on a long term basis before, and no utility company has ever faced the double-barreled catastrophe of huge infrastructure restoration costs and a revenue stream cut by two-thirds due to such an evacuation.

On December 1, 2005, the Entergy Board of Directors will meet to consider whether to continue to finance Entergy New Orleans. As part of that Board's deliberations, I will be compelled to state clearly to the Entergy Board the Bush Administration's position toward the Company, its investors and its customers as outlined by you:

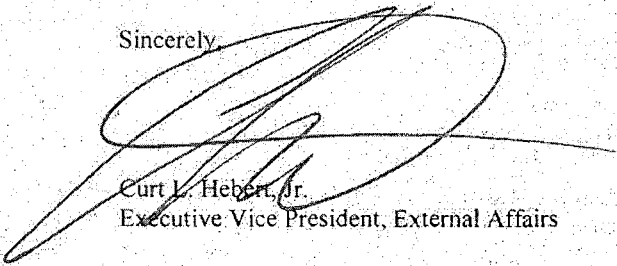

- The Administration will not provide any financial assistance to the electric and gas consumers within the City of New Orleans, because doing so might indirectly benefit Entergy shareholders or bondholders.
- The Administration will not provide assistance to the electric and gas consumers of New Orleans for restoration costs but rather those costs will have to be borne by the consumers themselves.
- The Administration's position on financial assistance will remain unchanged regardless of the outcome of Entergy New Orleans' bankruptcy proceedings.

I honestly cannot believe that President Bush would agree with your position. It certainly is not reflective of his proclamation declaring a National Day of Prayer and Remembrance for the Victims of Hurricane Katrina. "As the American people unite to help those who are hurting," the President wrote on that occasion, "we share a determination to stand by those affected by Hurricane Katrina in the months and years ahead as they rebuild their lives and reclaim their future. We are determined that the Gulf Coast region will rise again." I am encouraged that Mr. Powell has committed to discuss the issue with the President directly.

Finally, your viewpoint is inconsistent and appears to make a distinction between the needs of the prosperous occupants of lower Manhattan after the tragedy of 9/11 – when the Administration provided assistance directly to the local utility and its shareholders and bondholders – and the needs of the displaced and disproportionately poor residents of New Orleans after the single most significant natural disaster in American history. Just as the people of New York turned to the Bush Administration for help in a crisis four years ago, so do the electric and gas consumers in New Orleans do so today.

Please advise me prior to the December 1 Board meeting if any of the information in this letter is inaccurate or does not reflect the Administration's position.

Sincerely,

Subject: AP - Lawmakers begin considering reconstruction ideas

Lawmakers begin considering reconstruction ideas

By DAVID PACE

WASHINGTON (AP) Now that the $62 billion down payment is on its way, Gulf Coast lawmakers and their staffs are turning their attention to what comes next.

Is a financial bailout of New Orleans next on the federal agenda because Hurricane Katrina will dry up most sources of local tax revenue? What about rebuilding the Gulf Coast? Is a new reconstruction agency needed?

Could the depression-era Works Progress Administration be replicated in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama to put storm victims back to work rebuilding their communities?

The emergency money does nothing to address the massive rebuilding faced by residents. But quick approval of the money does buy Congress some time to make a more thorough assessment of the damage and to develop a more comprehensive relief package.

"This effort is going to evolve and the most important thing is just to move it forward," said Sen. Mary Landrieu, D-La. "We don't know the answers today. We don't even know all the questions to be asked."

Lawmakers probably will pass a third emergency aid bill soon, but only after regular hearings in which federal agencies will have to justify their spending needs. For the first $62 billion, Congress just fell in line with the Bush administration's request.

Congressional delegations in the three states are working on legislation to eliminate red tape that might slow or block aid from getting out.

The House last week, for example, approved a bill by Rep. Bobby Jindal, R-La., to waive a requirement that would have forced students whose studies were interrupted by the hurricane to begin repaying their federal college loans.

Congress also enacted legislation allowing the federal courts to operate outside their normal jurisdictions.

But most of the discussions have centered on three far-reaching issues: the reconstruction of the hundreds of destroyed homes and businesses; the financial crisis in New Orleans; and restoring the Louisiana coast to lessen the impact of future hurricanes.

"The federal government needs to think innovatively," Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss, said last week. "What do we want to do to avoid this sort of problem in the future and how can we do whatever we do better than we have done it?"

Congressional aides say research is under way on the idea of a new reconstruction agency, along the lines of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency normally would oversee reconstruction efforts after a hurricane. But the agency's slow initial response to Katrina and the unprecedented devastation make it more likely that lawmakers will look elsewhere.

"Former approaches may not work in this set of circumstances," said Rep. Jim McCrery, R-La. "We may have to think outside the box. We may want to create some overarching entity to direct the efforts."

McCrery said there almost certainly will be some type of jobs program for hurricane victims that is patterned after the New Deal's WPA.

"I think that's going to happen," he said. "The plan is to create temporary jobs for the cleanup and getting locations ready for reconstruction and rebuilding. And then, even in the rebuilding process, there may be jobs created with a preference given to displaced persons from those areas."

New Orleans was set to send out property tax assessments this month. With the city vacated for who knows how long, both property tax and sales tax revenues will dry up, forcing the city and school board to stop paying their employees or face bankruptcy, unless there is a federal bailout.

There were only 11 no votes in the 435-member House and none in the Senate last week when the second emergency spending bill was approved. But Gulf Coast lawmakers are worried that support in Congress may erode as the unprecedented scale of the reconstruction and financial problems facing the area becomes clearer.

"There is a tremendous concern about what comes after this," said Rep. Jo Bonner, R-Ala.

"Last week was really just a Band-Aid to get us through October. There are many people that are genuinely worried about how far we can go in an attempt to get the Gulf Coast back on its feet without setting a dangerous and unaffordable precedent for future disasters," she said.
