Pierre-Richard Prosper

Biography

Pierre-Richard Prosper was nominated by President Bush on May 16, 2001 to be the U.S. Ambassador-at-Large for War Crimes Issues and was sworn-in on Friday, July 13, 2001. In this position, he advises the Secretary of State directly on U.S. efforts to address serious violations of international humanitarian law, including genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes, committed in areas of conflict throughout the world. Ambassador Prosper oversees U.S. support for the creation and operation of courts and other judicial mechanisms to bring perpetrators of international humanitarian law to justice. Since September 11, 2001, Ambassador Prosper has played a key diplomatic role with foreign governments whose nationals have been captured in the war on terror.

From 1999 to 2001, Ambassador Prosper served as the Special Counsel and Policy Adviser to the previous Ambassador-at-Large for War Crimes Issues. Ambassador Prosper, a career prosecutor, was detailed to this position from the U.S. Department of Justice after serving as a Special Assistant to the Assistant Attorney General for the Criminal Division at the beginning of 1999.

During 1996 to late 1998, Ambassador Prosper served as a war crimes prosecutor for the United Nations International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda. Appointed lead trial attorney by the U.N. Chief Prosecutor, Ambassador Prosper successfully prosecuted the matter of the Prosecutor against Jean-Paul Akayesu, the first ever case of genocide under the 1948 Genocide Convention and the first case of the Rwanda tribunal. In this 14 month courtroom battle, he won additional life-sentence convictions for Crimes Against Humanity and broke new ground in international law by convincing the Tribunal to recognize rape committed in time of conflict as an act of genocide and a crime against humanity.

Between 1994 and 1996, Ambassador Prosper was an Assistant United States Attorney for the Central District of California in Los Angeles. He was assigned to the Narcotics Section, Drug Enforcement Task Force, where he investigated and prosecuted major international drug cartels.

Prior to becoming an Assistant U.S. Attorney, Ambassador Prosper was a Deputy District Attorney for Los Angeles County, California between the years 1989 and 1994. His last two years were spent in the Hardcore Gang Division of the Bureau of Special Operations where he prosecuted gang-related murders.

Born in Denver, Colorado in 1963, the son of two physicians who emigrated from Haiti, Ambassador Prosper was raised in New York State. He graduated from Boston College, where he was a member of the Varsity Lacrosse team, and Pepperdine University School of Law. He has been recognized for his achievements and commitment to justice for all humanity by his alma maters, a variety of law associations, cities, and a Haitian American historical society. Ambassador Prosper is a member of the California Bar. He is fluent in French and has a working knowledge of Italian and Spanish.

EXEC. DIR. PRESIDENT OF STRATEGIC INITIATIVES
2003 MAY 24 PM 2:22

February 5, 2003

Mr. Karl Rove
Senior Advisor to the President
Office of Strategic Initiatives
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Karl:

Ever since I came over to the "Dark Side," people keep asking me if you're as smart as you seem on television.

"Don't be ridiculous," I tell them. "The guy got a new suit and a haircut, and suddenly he's a campaign genius?"

"Really?" they reply.

"Absolutely!" I assure them.

Well, as much as I've repeated my mantra, no one around here is buying what I'm selling. So, I got to thinking that maybe it's not just the haircut.

For this reason, I wanted to offer you a chance to set the record straight. On Monday, March 10, 2003, the Mortgage Bankers Association of America (MBA) will host the Third Annual National Housing Summit at the Ronald Reagan Building and International Trade Center in Washington, DC. It is my honor, on behalf of the more than 2,600 MBA member companies, to invite you to address our gathering.

Our members would be very excited to hear from you about the President's plans to further stimulate the economy – a plan that MBA endorsed on the record. You should know that our industry's contribution to the economic growth has never been more vital and has received extensive media coverage. Today, the residential mortgage market is $5.8 trillion and the commercial and multifamily mortgage market totals $1.8 trillion. MBA members originate or service more than 50 percent of that debt, or nearly $3 trillion. The sustained vibrancy of new home starts, existing home sales and mortgage originations are essential to preserving our national prosperity.

The Summit is a focal point for the real estate finance industry, and its leadership attends this event in large numbers. Hundreds of CEOs, presidents and managing directors of real estate financing firms fly to Washington to participate along with dozens of housing industry experts.

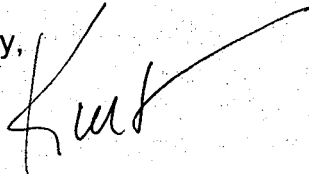

The Summit takes place during MBA's three-day Washington Leadership Conference: the annual opportunity for MBA membership to voice its strong support for the Administration's priorities on Capitol Hill. During 2001, for example, we were among the first to endorse the President's tax cut proposal. In 2002, we were your partners in urging Congress to pass legislation to create a program to provide insurance against future acts of terrorism.

We are also your partners in the White House Blueprint for the American Dream. In support of this effort, we have released our Stop Mortgage Fraud campaign in English and Spanish to help protect consumers from predatory lending. During 2003, MBA will meet an additional commitment to convene four regional forums on affordable housing.

If you have any questions, please contact me at (202) 557-2857 or by e-mail at Kurt_Pfotenhauer@mbaa.org.

Thank you. I hope you can make it.

Sincerely,

Kurt P. Pfotenhauer

Dear Karl:

As the two Republican co-chairman of the U.S. House of Representatives Oceans Caucus, we are committed to the promotion of sound congressional policies with respect to the world's oceans. While the Caucus has done much to raise awareness of oceans issues here in the House of Representatives, we believe that it would helpful to our efforts, and to the President's oceans agenda, if we were to meet with you to discuss priorities for the coming year. Joe Allbaugh has also been invited to take part in this meeting.

We hope to be joined by Admiral James D. Watkins, chair of the U.S. Commission on Ocean Policy and former Chief of Naval Operations and Secretary of Energy under President George H. W. Bush, and. The Commission's mandate is to make recommendations to the President and to Congress for a coordinated and comprehensive national ocean policy, and the Admiral is a leading figure in current thought regarding oceans science.

Both the U.S. Commission on Ocean Policy and the Pew Oceans Commission, chaired by former congressman and White House chief of staff Leon Panetta, are scheduled to issue their final reports this year. There is, therefore, a tremendous opportunity for the President to put forward a bold oceans agenda. Obviously, early coordination between the President and Congress would facilitate any future legislative efforts. We would like to work with you and Admiral Watkins to put together a package that would serve the cause of preserving our oceans, and would reflect favorably upon the President.

Ocean policy lies at the intersection of national security and environmental protection. If the President seizes the initiative on this front, he will command the high ground from both the policy and political perspectives. We are confident that you will understand the potential for success.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Rove:

On behalf of our Board of Directors, I want to thank you for your participation in our recent Fifth Conference on Baltic Security: "Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania in NATO: Building Trans-Atlantic Security". You helped make this conference our most successful yet.

A vision that was only a dream a decade ago, to see Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania integrating into NATO is becoming true, due in part to the dedication, persistence and beliefs of people like you. We convey our gratitude for your contribution to making this shared vision a reality, and for being able to celebrate together this achievement.

Karl:

Thanks for your note of March 26th.

Your schedule is much tighter than mine. Let me plan my trip around the most convenient time for you.

The following dates I can be in Washington, D.C.
April 21, 23, 25, 28, 29 or 30
May 9, 12, or 13

I also recognize you may have to cancel at the last minute.

Tell me a date and time.

IN BRIEF

Glass houses

The nation's largest private operator of prisons and jails last week announced plans to launch faith-based programs in each of the 60 facilities it runs over the next three years. Corrections Corporation of America (CCA) said it will partner with Dallas-based Bill Glass Champions for Life to provide the programs. Mr. Glass, a former pro football star, has been involved in prison outreach for three decades. His organization is known as one of the largest and most successful evangelical prison ministries in the country.

CCA officials say they based their decision in part on the track record of prison ministries: lower recidivism rates, improved inmate and staff morale and safety, and better-quality rehabilitation. They say it all adds up to lower costs. Nashville-based CCA oversees 55,000 inmates under contracts with federal, state, and local jurisdictions in 21 states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico. Ⓞ

LOW-COST ALTERNATIVE: Glass has a successful track record.

Imperial Vermont

Ripples are crashing into other states from Vermont, where a law in 2000 established a "civil-union" category that is essentially marriage for same-sex partners, complete with spousal rights.

Now a judge in Nassau County, N.Y., has ruled that a male homosexual can sue a hospital as the spouse of another man who died a year ago of medical complications following an auto accident. The pair had exchanged vows and rings in a civil ceremony in Vermont in late 2000.

The ruling is the first in the nation to treat a same-sex couple joined in a Vermont civil union as a married couple. Judge John P. Dunne said New York law allows a common-law spouse from another state to sue for wrongful death and a same-sex partner joined by Vermont's civil-union law should have the same right. State law, he noted, doesn't define "spouses" as being of the opposite sex.

The judge rejected an argument by St. Vincent's Hospital that the civil union was a "narrow circumstance" that allows an exception to federal doctrine requiring states generally to recognize each others' laws. Courts in other states have refused to validate the Vermont law for same-sex couples in their jurisdictions, including in divorce cases. Ⓞ —E.P.

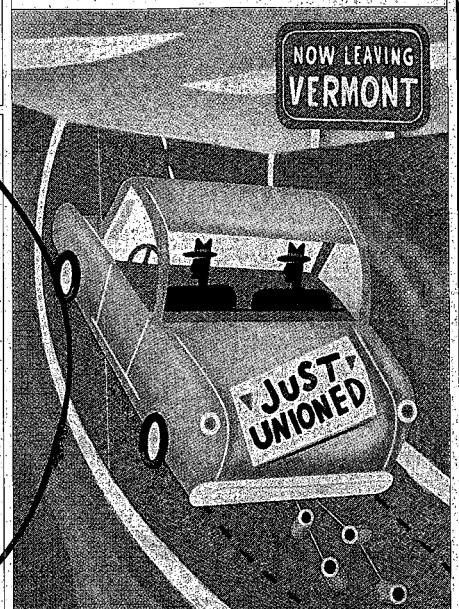

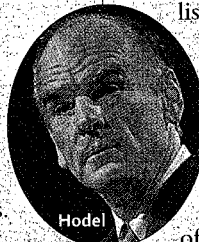

Tighter focus

Focus on the Family founder James Dobson, 66, will turn over his post as president and CEO of the group this month to Don Hodel, a Focus board member and former secretary of the interior and energy in the Reagan administration. Mr. Dobson, who retains his post as Focus' chairman, said he plans to spend more time speaking and writing. He will remain the radio voice of Focus, whose daily broadcasts reach an estimated 5 million listeners.

The ministry, with multiple outreach and publishing programs, a staff of nearly 1,300, and a mailing list of 2.6 million, has had to cope with the downturn in the economy. It recently pared its budget to $125 million, laid off 36 staff, and eliminated 60 other positions. Ⓞ —E.P.

RESPECTFUL DISSENT
THOMAS JIPPING

New milestones in Democrat hypocrisy

Posted: May 2, 2003

Three judicial-confirmation milestones on April 28 prove that the process is completely broken.

First, Senate Democrats launched another filibuster. This one, against appeals-court nominee Priscilla Owen, is because of what Democrats say they know about her. It complements the first one, against appeals-court nominee Miguel Estrada, which is because of what Democrats say they don't know about him.

It wasn't supposed to happen this way. Back on Feb. 14, Sen. Richard Durbin, D-Ill., insisted that the Estrada filibuster had to do only with lack of information about the nominee's views, not the views themselves. He said his fellow Democrats "to a person" agreed with him that as long as senators "know for whom we are voting," a vote should happen. And on Tuesday, Sen. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., similarly said that a different appeals-court nominee approved that day avoided a filibuster because he had "answered questions."

Priscilla Owen had not one, but two, hearings before the Judiciary Committee. Senate Democrats, including Durbin and Schumer, argued the second hearing was unnecessary because they know everything there is to know. The Durbin-Schumer standard obviously requires a vote on the Owen nomination.

The jarring inconsistency of also filibustering Priscilla Owen reportedly did give some Democrats pause (though probably not to a person). But even that momentary lapse in compliant obedience was quickly squashed. The abortion extremist groups that control the Democrat caucus said they would "score" a vote on whether to filibuster the Owen nomination. That is, the vote would be used to determine how pro-abortion senators really are. The need to be on NARAL President Kate Michelman's "A" list was too important. To paraphrase Emerson, confirmation consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds, avoided by little politicians.

A second April 28 milestone came with the confirmation of Jeffrey Sutton to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. He was in President Bush's first batch of 11 appeals-court nominees and, with his confirmation, a bare majority of that group has finally been approved.

Here's how math works in Leftistland. It took 720 days for six of 11 Bush nominees to be approved. The previous three presidents saw 11 of their first 11 nominees confirmed in an average of 81 days. Those two scenarios are equal to Sen. Schumer, who proclaimed on Tuesday that Democrats were not "being obstructionist."

Or consider this from another leftist math whiz. Sen. Durbin said on Tuesday that, without Mr. Sutton, "the Sixth Circuit is evenly balanced now." He said that, it's on page S5442 of the Congressional Record. Yet on that day, the court's 10 full-time judges included six Democrat and four Republican appointees. Even with Mr. Sutton's appointment, the court is not "evenly balanced," at least as most normal Americans would measure it. I think perhaps it's Sen. Durbin who may not be evenly balanced.

Or how about this one from Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa. He denounced what he claimed was a Republican scheme to "rush a vote" on Mr. Sutton. He even said that Republicans' effort to "ram this [nomination] through" meant that "we cannot debate it." He said that – it's on page S5445 (the second day of the Sutton non-debate, by the way). Mr. Sutton had been scheduled for a Judiciary Committee hearing in May 2001. Probably knowing that the partisan tables would soon turn and they would become the majority, Democrats scuttled that hearing and then simply ignored Mr. Sutton thereafter. Hundreds and hundreds of days later, now it's a rush job?

The other significant numbers from the Sutton confirmation show that the Democrats' obstruction machine gains something even when it loses. Only one judicial nominee in the last quarter-century has been confirmed with fewer than the 52 votes Mr. Sutton received. And the negative votes once again topped 40, the magic number needed to support a filibuster.

The third milestone is that Senate Democrats have finally admitted why they are so enamored of litmus tests and nominees' personal views. Sen. Durbin described the "extraordinary power" of federal judges this way: "Most of us in the Senate will come and go, and they will still be sitting on the bench with gavel in hand, in their black robes, meting out justice according to their own values. So it is important that we ask questions and make inquires as to what those values might be."

That's what leftists really believe, that judges decide their cases "according to their own values." Not according to law, but their own values. Since judges decide cases according to their own views, nominees with insufficiently leftist views are unlikely to render sufficiently leftist decisions. Hence, to leftists, such folks are simply unqualified to sit on the bench.

All of that in just two days, loads of proof that the confirmation process is broken and needs to be fixed.

Dear Karl,

It was good to see you briefly at the White House. I want to thank you for making it possible for me and the clergy to be briefed. I think it was very beneficial. Dr. James Dobson called me immediately following his meeting with you, and he was reassured and felt far more positive. Thank you for taking your time with him.

Thank you for all that you do for this nation. Be assured of our prayers.
God bless you.

April 14, 2003

Dear Karl,

Thank you for your note.

I want to congratulate you and the administration on a spectacular and quick conclusion to the fighting phase of the Freedom for Iraq effort. The surgical precision, plus the low casualties have helped to rekindle the confidence of the country with our President and his administration.

I think with this momentum, you need to switch gears and focus the administration's attention on jump starting the U.S economy - which is weak, but by no means broken. The passage of the President's tax bill will obviously go a long way to give confidence to the CEOs of the major corporations that the economy is on the mend and coax them into capital spending.

I think that the country, as well as the business community, would be greatly encouraged if the President and his economic advisors would consider organizing five or six working breakfast or lunch meetings with 50 or 60 business people in diverse states like Washington, New York, Pennsylvania, Florida, Minnesota and California. I think these meetings should consist of a wide variety of groups, from all sectors and sizes; and all ethnicities.

These working meetings would give the President and his advisors a clearer picture of what is happening at all levels of the economy. It will also make the business community more confident about the direction of the economy and the country. This might be just the kind of jolt that could help to get thing rolling again. It would also dispel any concerns that this President is out of touch with public opinion or business needs. I have some additional details on this concept and would be glad to outline them for you if you have some interest.

(b)(6)

I wish you the best and look forward to hearing from you.

Just,

The Honorable George W. Bush
President of the United States
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

Thank you for the opportunity to participate in the business round table discussion of your Jobs and Growth Package. I was honored to be included. I believe that your plan is important to help stimulate growth in the economy and restore confidence in the financial markets. Removing the double-taxation of dividends would be a great benefit to many seniors who count on dividends to supplement their retirement income.

I am confident that, with your leadership, you will achieve passage of this important piece of legislation. I will do everything I can to help.

Your courage, leadership, and willingness to do the right thing in the face of enormous criticism is an example for all of us to follow. If I can ever be of service, do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Alan F. Skrainka

Hon. Dennis Hastert
H-232, The Capitol
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Speaker Hastert,

In his State of the Union Address this January, President Bush articulated a strong moral case for intervening in the AIDS crisis in Africa and the Caribbean. In February, we joined others in praising the principles outlined by the President for the $15 billion Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief—principles based on sound evidence of practices that have reduced HIV prevalence in areas most ravaged by it, Uganda and Jamaica.

Regrettably, the legislative proposal for implementing the $15 billion fund has not adhered to the vision articulated by the President. The bill produced last week by the House International Relations Committee failed in several respects to prioritize effective practices and to ensure accountability for this significant new funding. We urge you not to move this legislation to the floor. We are encouraged by word that another bill could be offered by the House Energy and Commerce Committee that would better address the concerns we have raised.

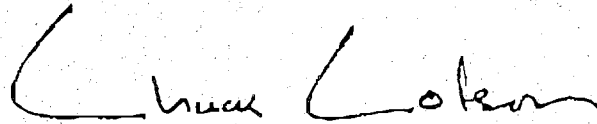

It is a moral imperative for America to use her strength for good in the face of this humanitarian crisis. That means ensuring that this money is spent on what we know works—and any money misdirected from those ends is a failure to save a life.

We have included a list of priorities that we share with other organizations and that must be embodied in any global AIDS legislation in order for it to be effective. We urge you not to support legislation that fails to abide by these principles. Thank you for your leadership on this critical issue. We look forward to working with you.

Sincerely,

William J. Bennett

Principles for a Global AIDS Relief Bill

- Clear Prioritization of Prevention Strategies: Prevention programs that address behavior must emphasize risk elimination. The programs that have been most successful—in Uganda and Jamaica—have had clear messages about changing sexual behavior through abstinence and faithfulness. By contrast, African nations that have promoted only condom use and have the highest condom user rates on the continent—South Africa, Zimbabwe, Botswana and Kenya—also tend to have the highest HIV prevalence rates. Historically, U.S.-funded programs have largely ignored the “A” and “B” and emphasized and supported only the “C” in the so-called “ABc” approach. U.S. global HIV/AIDS prevention must re-prioritize in statutory language and espouse in practice the successful Uganda and Jamaica approaches by making risk avoidance—abstinence, delaying sexual activity, marriage and monogamy—the primary defense against HIV.
- Accountability through Bilateral Aid: The President has allotted $1 billion over five years to the Global AIDS Fund, reserving the majority of the proposed funds for direction by the U.S. government. This bilateral aid is the most effective and efficient means for sending relief to those who daily face the risk of death. With the lives of millions currently in peril, time and resources are precious. Every cent that is spent on bureaucracy or agendas not in keeping with the President’s proposal is that much less that will reach those affected by AIDS.
- Participation of and Protection for Faith-Based Organizations: Faith-based groups must be a key element of all HIV prevention and AIDS treatment programs. The Catholic Church alone currently cares for one in four people being treated for AIDS worldwide. Religious missionaries already possess much of the infrastructure, experience, knowledge, and compassion that will be needed to carry out these programs and must be an integral part of U.S. efforts. Because they are such an important part of this effort, religious organizations must be protected from being coerced to promote activities that violate or contradict their faith as a condition of receiving U.S. financial assistance.
- Initiatives to Combat Sexual Violence: Any effective initiative to combat the spread of HIV/AIDS must address the problem of sexual victimization. Traditional prevention strategies seek to encourage and empower healthy choices about sexual behavior, but victims of coercive sexual encounters do not get to make choices about their sexual activities. This global HIV/AIDS bill must call attention to the problem of sex trafficking and prostitution, and prohibit funds to any groups that support, legitimize, or facilitate prostitution.
- Appointment of the Global AIDS Coordinator: In order for the U.S. government to proceed with a coherent and competent global HIV/AIDS relief policy, the individual who holds the position of global AIDS coordinator created by this legislation must be committed to upholding the principles that the President has outlined, and must have the latitude to carry them out. This legislation must allow the President to appoint a coordinator who shares his vision and who can implement it effectively.

2003 MAY 14 PM 5:34
EXEC. OFC. PRESIDENT
WH STRATEGIC INITIATIVES

HEAD START of Greater Dallas, Inc.

THE MARGARET H. CONE CENTER AND THE LANGUAGE ENRICHMENT AND ACTIVITIES PROGRAM

In 1989, the Texas Instruments Foundation decided to improve the educational performance of children in the local community. TI Foundation determined the best way to make a long-term impact would be to fund the development and replication of a model preschool program for children from low-income families. The foundation recognized the fundamental soundness of the Head Start program and believed it could demonstrate that a Head Start center, with appropriate programmatic enhancements, could prepare low-income children from any environment for academic success in school. The foundation invited Head Start of Greater Dallas to be its partner and together they developed the Margaret H. Cone Head Start Center, now in its thirteenth year of operation.

The Cone center, located within one of the most impoverished and neglected communities in Dallas, serves 90 children. Most families enrolled in the Cone center are headed by a single parent and survive on less than $7,500 annually. Unemployment among these families approaches 76 percent while only 41 percent of parents have a high school diploma. The families are primarily African American, although there is a small but increasing number of Hispanic families.

TI Foundation underwrote increased salary and benefits for the staff, intensive teacher training, a full-time nurse practitioner, two full-time social workers and a parent employment program. Determined to measure the effectiveness of the center, the foundation funded the University of Texas at Arlington to conduct ongoing research and evaluation. The children were tracked through standardized test scores and other data. When test results showed broad gains in all developmental domains except for cognitive and language skills, the foundation commissioned Nell Carvell at the Southern Methodist University Learning Therapy Program to design a curriculum addressing the deficits. The Language Enrichment Activities Program (LEAP) is the result of those efforts.

Research demonstrates that growth in language development is a vital component of effective preschool education and is essential to later success in school. LEAP develops children's language skills through activities that encourage interactive listening; print and phonological awareness; knowledge of letters, numbers and basic concepts; a basic understanding of mathematical and scientific reasoning, the development of writing skills and an appreciation of books.

LEAP has become the centerpiece of the Cone center's success. Once Head Start children from the Cone center enter public school, they equal or outperform children from any other background. Median scores on the nationally respected Iowa Test of Basic Skills increased from the 20 and 30th percentiles in 1992 and 1993 to the 60 and 70th percentiles in 1995. This success has led Head Start to implement LEAP and the Cone center's innovative blend of program elements in its remaining 26 centers. LEAP has also been implemented in the Dallas Independent School District's pre-k program.

Encouraged by this success, the foundation began promoting the model program on the state level. In 1998, they were able to attract the support of then Governor George W. Bush and First Lady Laura Bush, who successfully urged the Texas Legislature to appropriate $17 million to replicate LEAP and foster similar programs throughout the State of Texas. Now in the White House, the President and First Lady are pointing to the Margaret H. Cone Center and LEAP as a model for preparing children for success in school.

Dallas Early Childhood Reading Initiative National Demonstration Project

In 2002 a diverse group of businesses, civic organizations, government representatives, foundations and education providers created the Dallas Early Childhood Reading Initiative Working Group (DECRI).

Situation: A majority of economically disadvantaged children are unprepared for school and often enter kindergarten with language abilities well behind children from middle-income families. The gap between a child's achievement and potential widens over time limiting academic success.

Vision: For every child to arrive at kindergarten ready to read, ready to learn.

Mission:

- Provide a language-rich, scientifically-based and research-based pre-literacy curriculum to every economically disadvantaged child whose family income is less than 185% of the poverty level.
- Serve as national & state demonstration project for collaboration between federal, state and locally funded childcare providers, universities, non-profits, businesses and foundations to affect change in the community.
- Use the Dallas Independent School District (DISD) and Head Start of Greater Dallas as model.
- Initial deployment within boundaries of DISD, followed by Dallas County.
- Engage all eligible preschool providers including Head Start Centers, regional school districts, state-funded, private and faith-based programs.

Partners: Head Start of Greater Dallas; DISD; the Child Care Group (CCG)/Child Care Management Services (CCMS); the Foundation for Community Empowerment; the Dallas Housing Authority; the Greater Dallas Chamber; the Dallas Citizens Council; WorkSource for Dallas County; READ for Texas; Southern Methodist University; Luce & Williams, Ltd.; the Texas Instruments Foundation.

Pre-Literacy Curriculum: Language Enrichment Activities Program (LEAP) created by Nell Carvell at Southern Methodist University with assistance from the Texas Instruments Foundation.

About LEAP: Created in the early 1990s, LEAP focuses on enhancing vocabulary development, phonological awareness, listening skills, fine motor skill development and math and science concepts. A central component of LEAP is its teacher training program with a focus on instructor's language skills and the application of LEAP materials. LEAP also provides role modeling in the classroom by trained volunteers.

LEAP was first deployed at the Margaret Cone Head Start Center in one of the lowest-income regions in Dallas. Performance data has been central to assess the success of the program. Children who took the Iowa Test of Basic Skills (ITBS) at their local elementary school (Julia C. Frazier) after a year at Cone in 1990-1992 – prior to the implementation of LEAP – scored on average in the 20th-30th percentile. A big increase occurred after the children were exposed to LEAP and teaching was upgraded in the elementary school. Average scores on the ITBS in the mid-late 1990s increased to the 60th -70th percentile, hitting the 94th percentile in vocabulary (ITBS). By the end of the 2001-2002 school year, 90% of “LEAP” children at Frazier were reading at grade level. A bilingual curriculum has also been developed and deployed to serve Spanish-speaking children at the Jerry Junkins Child Development Center in West Dallas.

Head Start of Greater Dallas has implemented LEAP in all of its 27 sites. In addition, LEAP will be used in 240 preschool classrooms in DISD during 2002-2003, led by approximately 500 teachers trained in LEAP. Educators around Texas and in other states including Alabama, California, Louisiana, Maine and Virginia are also integrating LEAP into preschool programs.

Dallas Early Childhood Reading Initiative Status Report: In addition to agreeing on a common curriculum, DISD, Head Start, and CCG have agreed to a comprehensive plan to incorporate LEAP into their pre-school programs beginning with the 2003-04 school year. Training and acquisition of materials is well underway. The providers are finalizing execution and evaluation standards and secured some funds to begin the execution.

What can you do to help? This program has been developed with the goal of state and national replication. DECRI will define best practices, required resources and essential participants needed in such a collaboration to facilitate deployment in other communities around the state and country.

To support implementation and replication, DECRI seeks to include the federal and Texas state governments in this collaboration. Corporate and Foundation contributions will be pursued to complement federal and state funding support.

Dear Mr. Rove,

I am writing to request two meetings with you, one to discuss DaimlerChrysler Corporation and another regarding Tyson Foods. The Chairman of the Board of Management of DaimlerChrysler, Jürgen E. Schrempp, will be in Washington on June 10th and John Tyson, Chairman and CEO of Tyson Foods, is available for a meeting anytime in the near future.

We would appreciate any time you could allot for these meetings. My assistant, Sherry Rimoczy, will contact your office in the next few days to see if your schedule permits a meeting.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Quinn Gillespie

EMERG. PRES. PRESIDENT
WHY BUREAU INITIATIVES

27 JUN -2 AM 7:22

ANTHONY A. WILLIAMS
MAYOR

April 24, 2003

Mr. Karl Rove
Senior Advisor to the President
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20500-0004

Dear Mr. Rove:

April 11, 2003 marked the conclusion of the first 100 days of my second term. In that first 100 days, we have worked aggressively to focus our efforts on my priorities for the next four years: public safety, education, and opportunity for all. As citizens who love the District of Columbia, I am confident we will all do our part to make great strides in these key areas.

I am writing to personally thank you for your contributions to and continued support of the District government — and most importantly to our beloved city, Washington, D.C. As you have supported the District, our government offices are available to address any questions or concerns you may have. Please feel free to call (202) 727-6377 or e-mail me at anthony.williams@dc.gov in the event we can be of assistance.

I look forward to another four years of public service to our nation's capital. Together, we can achieve my vision of One City, One Future.

Regards,

Dear Friend,

I thought you might be interested in the enclosed article about my views concerning President Bush's proposed "road map" for peace in Israel.

I fear that Israel is approaching a period of unprecedented international pressure. We must ensure that our nation continues its unqualified support for our ally.

Please let me know what you think. Feel free to call me at or email me at

Sincerely,

ANTHONY D. WEINER

A CAPITAL REPORT TO THE JEWISH COMMUNITY

CONGRESSMAN ANTHONY D. WEINER

The Worst Time For The 'Road Map' — Right Now

On the eve of the war with Iraq, President Bush announced that he would soon be announcing the much discussed "Road Map" for peace in the Middle East. The timing was intended to help our staunch ally, British Prime Minister Tony Blair, weather a political storm at home.

But the time is wrong for several reasons:

The "Quartet" has little credibility.

While all eyes have been on President Bush, the plan is to be issued and supported by the so-called Quartet — The U.S., the UN, the European Union and Russia. Do any of our partners have sufficient credibility to be offering their input on how to deal with the difficult issues of terrorism and defense?

The United Nations has failed consistently to enforce even its own tepid resolutions of disarmament in Iraq. They failed to act in Kosovo and have even failed to act on violations of recent security council actions against terrorism by allowing Syria to continue to harbor terrorists without a peep of protest. And lest we forget, this is a body that has equated Zionism with racism while doing nothing as a wave of anti-Semitism sweeps Europe.

The EU and Russia have not been much better. They have abdicated their role as international leaders by actively supporting Saddam Hussein with words and deeds.

How can the Russians sponsor a plan to bring security to Israel when they have exported technology to jam United States missiles and weapon technology to our enemies?

As for the European Union, has France shown a commitment to stopping terror?

The Germans?

Even our friends the British have demonstrated an insensitivity to the realities of the region. As bombs were dropping in Bagdad, British Foreign Minister Jack Straw equated Iraq with Israel with respect to violations of UN resolutions. Putting aside how wrong this is in fact, it is an odious glimpse into the mind of a "sympathetic" member of the Quartet.

The Palestinians Are Not Ready — Still.

If there has been one lesson that the world has learned about the Palestinians under the leadership of Yasir Arafat it is that they need to be judged on their actions, because their words have been hollow. An important recent action must be judged before any road map is considered — the appointment of a Prime Minister.

While the past of Abu Mazen is checkered by his denial of the Holocaust, he has made important statements about the futility and harm of the Palestinian strategy of empowerment via terror. But platitudes are meaningless if two tests are not passed.

First, Mazen must be given the authority to shut down the terror network that has been funded, harbored and controlled by Yasir Arafat.

The second test is how he uses his new authority. Until the new Palestinian Prime Minister is empowered and passes the vital test of his actions, the most important party is not ready for peace — the Palestinians.

The Road Map Has Too Many Road Blocks.

If Israel is to accept the Road Map, there are still reportedly major changes that need to be made before it is released. Among the demands by the Israeli government, according to sources in Jerusalem as reported in Haaartz, include:

- A change of the Palestinian leadership. (Something that President Bush has echoed).

- Bilateral negotiations and an agreement with Israel before establishment of a Palestinian state, first in temporary borders and later with a permanent status agreement.

- Rejection of the Saudi initiative, calling for Israel to withdraw to the 1967 borders, as one of the cornerstones of the agreement.

- Detailing of security demands of the Palestinians, including arrest, interrogation and trial of terror suspects, and clarification that a Palestinian state can only be founded after complete dissolution of the terrorist infrastructure.

- Freedom of operation for the Israel Defense Forces against terrorism in Palestinian Authority territory.

- Israel will agree to freeze settlement activity only after quiet has been achieved and will not agree to dismantle settlements during the interim period.

- Palestinian recognition of Israel as a Jewish state.

President Bush deserves credit for sticking to the notion that Palestinian violence must end and Palestinian leadership must change before exerting pressure for a peace plan. We pray that those conditions are met, but it is clear that they have not yet been. ■

Congressman Weiner, a Democrat, represents Queens and Brooklyn.
