The Honorable George Bush
Chairman
Republican National Committee
310 First Street, S.E.
Washington, D.C. 20003

Dear Chairman Bush:

I understand from an article in the Washington Post which was reprinted in the Milwaukee Sentinel that the RNC is investigating charges that Karl C. Rove taught "political sabotage and dirty tricks" at a campaign seminar in Wisconsin in August of 1971. I find it incumbent upon me to respond to these charges.

I was the state chairman of the Wisconsin College Republicans in 1971-1972. The Wisconsin College Republicans co-sponsored the seminar in question with the College Republican National Committee. The schedule for the seminar, a copy of which is enclosed, was established by Karl Rove and myself. I therefore believe that I can speak with authority about the allegations made against Karl Rove and the seminar.

As you will note from the schedule, the seminar followed a tight schedule, and it centered around the organization of a statewide youth campaign. No where in the schedule was there any topic on "campaign sabotage and dirty tricks". The only time when this topic may have come up for discussion was under "Youth Campaign Security", when the discussion would have involved how to prevent your own campaign from being sabotaged rather than how to sabotage your opponent's campaign. In this context, it is possible that Karl may have given examples of campaign sabotage, but only in a negative sense, and not in any way to instruct or encourage the seminar participants to engage in campaign sabotage.

To confirm that my recollection of the seminar is correct, I have been checking with other College Republicans from Wisconsin who attended the seminar. No one with whom I have talked has any memory of Karl Rove, or anyone else, teaching or encouraging either campaign sabotage or dirty tricks in the manner suggested in the newspaper article. I have asked these individuals to send statements regarding their recollection of the seminar, and especially any discussion of campaign sabotage, to your office.

If your office wants to continue the investigation, I will be glad to try to put together a list of the names and addresses of the CRs who registered for the seminar. (Some have graduated from college or are no longer active, but in these cases we could probably supply their home addresses.)

George C. Rand and Mark Freedman were at the hotel where this seminar was held, but to the best of my knowledge, and that of the other seminar participants, they spent most of their time in their room(s) partying, and attended few, if any, of the seminar sessions. It is my personal opinion that their unfounded charges are based on nothing more than political and/or personal opposition to Karl Rove and their desire to destroy him. It is unfortunate indeed that in attempting to capitalize on the emotion-laden Watergate atmosphere, Messrs Rand and Freedman have evidently given little regard to how their tactics may damage the Republican Party. If anyone deserves reprimanding, it is George C. Rand and Mark Freedman, and not Karl Rove.

Having worked with Karl Rove throughout my term as Chairman of the Wisconsin College Republicans, I can attest that Karl is an intelligent hard-working and mature individual whose activities have always been positive in nature, and a credit to our party. I believe he is a real asset to the College Republican National Committee and to the Republican National Committee, and it will indeed be a shame if the "sour grapes" antics of Rand and Freedman should in any way injure Karl's effectiveness.

Sincerely yours,

J. TIMOTHY GRATZ

Dear Mr. Bush,

In a recent article in the Milwaukee Journal I read that George Rand and Mark Freedman have accused Karl Rove of teaching dirty tricks at a workshop in Wisconsin in August of 1971. At the time of this workshop I was state vice chairman of the Wisconsin College Republicans which sponsored this workshop along with the College Republican National Committee. J. Timothy Gratz who was state chairman at that time, and myself, did most of the work of getting people to attend this workshop and raising money to pay for it.

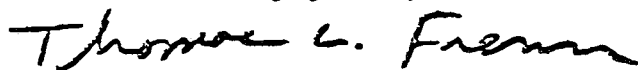

I attended most of the sessions of the workshop including the one on campaign security. At this session Karl Rove talked about dirty tricks that have been pulled on various campaigns. The tenor of Mr. Rove's talk was how to avoid having these tricks pulled on yourself during a campaign. His opinion was that these tricks could backfire too easily and that time and effort put into most dirty tricks could be better used in other ways.

Mr. Rove's opinion of dirty tricks was not shared by all those participating in these workshops. I also attended a workshop conducted by Morton Blackwell in February of 1970. At this workshop Blackwell did advocate the use of dirty tricks. He was suggesting things such as planting embarrassing questions at a press conference or hecklers at a speech.

My opinion is that the charges against Mr. Rove are false and are an attempt to discredit Rove so that the Republican National Committee will not recognize Rove as CRNC Chairman.

I have the highest opinion of Karl Rove and I am sure he will make a very outstanding CRNC Chairman.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Chairman Bush,

It was with great dismay that I read an article in the Washington Post on August 10th accusing Karl C. Rove of teaching "dirty tricks" at campaign seminars. I only wish Mr. Saar could have attended the most recent CRNC Fieldman School, held right here in Washington less than two weeks ago. I attended this school, as well as one in Charleston, South Carolina in July 1972.

These schools were excellent campaign seminars. The so-called "dirty tricks" stories were told as anecdotes during the seminar last summer but were accompanied by a warning against their future use.

Had Mr. Saar taken an hour or two to drop by this most recent school, I am sure that he would have been more than satisfied with the above board manner in which the school was conducted.

Please contact me if you have questions about either seminar.

Jane Fox

Dear Chairman Bush:

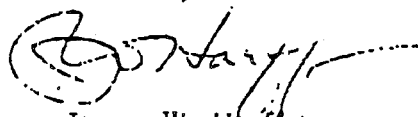

I have known Karl Rove for three years and have had the opportunity to observe him in programs which he has conducted for the College Young Republicans in the State of Wisconsin.

In my judgment, Karl possesses the type of leadership and integrity which the Republican Party so desperately needs at this critical time in its history.

As a former national chairman for the College Republican National Committee (1961-63), I can appreciate that Karl has political opponents within his organization who will make unfounded accusations and attempt to interfere with the program which he is trying to implement. To allow these persons to influence the Republican National Committee would be a serious mistake.

Karl Rove is one of the most credible young political leaders whom I have ever met, and as an individual who has been involved in the Republican Party politics for all of my adult life, I would personally consider it a tragedy for the Party if he were removed from his position.

Dear Mr. Bush:

As a delegate to the August 11, 12, 13, 1972 Fieldman School in Lexington, Kentucky, I believe I may be of some service to you in regard to the investigation concerning Mr. Karl C. Rove.

The three day seminar in question was a well organized workshop in practical politics. During the course of the workshop those present were trained to raise funds, organize a youth campaign, compose press releases, design a news-letter and other similar nuts-and-bolts endeavors.

Concerning tactics, they were of the nature of rye-grass signs along highways; washing windshields and leaving a note which said something on the order of "Now that you can see clearly, please vote for...." And other harmless publicity stunts.

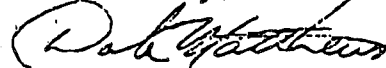

On occasion, to relieve the tension produced by the high intensity of this crash course in basic campaign planning, Mr. Rove told amusing stories. One of these concerned a fellow who invited 1,000 hippie types to the opening of the Dixon campaign headquarters. No one identified the culprit in this case and Mr. Rove certainly did not take credit for the incident.

Such stories must be taken in the context of the campaign school. They were never advocated. I specifically recall Mr. Rove warning those in his audience who would consider using such tactics, "I can't stop you if you want to do that but you should be extremely careful if you do."

If I can be of any further assistance to you my records of the Lexington school are at your disposal.

Chairman Bush:

During the weekend of August 11-13, 1972, I attended the College Republican National Committee Fieldmen School in Lexington, Ky. The workshop was under the direction of Karl Rove, then the executive director of the CRNC. The school was designed to develop a foundation for student organizing of College Republicans. It was a very exhaustive and invaluable experience, which I will continue to benefit from in the subsequent years.

As of late, I have learned that this particular school has been the center of a grave controversy in regard to dirty tricks. The allegations that Karl Rove and other College Republican leaders taught dirty tricks disturbed me profoundly. Immediately after learning of the allegations, I began looking through my notes and the literature from the seminar. After my own inquisition, I found nothing that indicated Karl Rove or anybody else had urged or taught the implementation of dirty tricks into CR activities. At the first sound of the accusations, I was certain of their falsity. But after my own inquiry, there was no doubt in my mind that the usage of dirty tricks had never been taught at that seminar.

Since I first learned of these swearing allegations, I have become exceedingly troubled and disillusioned with the Republican Party and the entire political system.

Chairman Bush, here is a guy, Karl Rove, whom I believe has done more for the furthering the cause of College Republicanism than any five persons you could possibly name. His political competence is utterly astounding.

Furthermore, Rove's imaginative and innovative changes have greatly enhanced the communication between the individual clubs and the CRNC. Today, as a result of his exhausting efforts, College Republicans all across the United States can identify with CRNC.

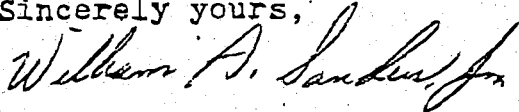

After his invaluable service to the College Republicans, he is being 'smeared and degraded by a bunch of damn lies from a diminutive clan. Without doubt they are trying to prevent Karl Rove from being Chairman of the CRNC. Karl legitimately won the election and unequivocally deserves to be chairman.

These malicious imputations are totally unfair and inaccurate and I direct a vehement condemnation to their fallaciousness. Obviously, these allegations are an attempted character assassination of Karl Rove. These actions cannot be tolerated by any respectable member of the Republican Party.

In the past year, I got to know Karl very well and my respect for him has enhanced at every meeting. Not only do I respect his ability, but his admirable integrity and character are equally respected. Like many, I have an abiding faith in Karl Rove.

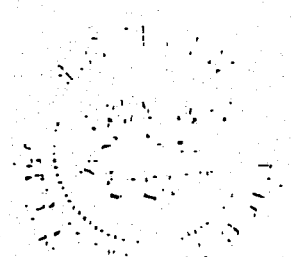

Chairman Bush, with your equitable and honest reputation as a politician, I am extremely confident that the truth will prevail and Karl Rove will be absolved of these malicious allegations.

Dear Mr. Bush:

As one of the organizers of the College Republican National Committee Student Fieldman School held August 11, 12, and 13, 1973, in Frankfort, Kentucky, I would like to express my gratitude as to the general purpose and content of this school. We charged that our fieldman school was a "waterbury" school and totally unfunded and, I believe, the way to play the discredit and to end the College Republican school leadership.

Please find enclosed a copy of the schedule that was followed for topic discussions. At no time were party trucks recognized or were suggested by any of the staff of the school. The incident concerning the Alan Nixon campaign in Illinois was told only as a story to offer a break from the routine of the day's events. It was not offered as a comparison but told as a Democrat while it was pending; protesters to be held daily. All speakers questions were asked board and then by mail in getting up and answering an effective C.R. line.

As for Mr. Nixon, I would offer enough evidence of his extreme conservatism and his ability of political maneuver. He has always dealt with us personally and with us all. I know with honesty and integrity. I would suggest that the support of his campaign is not the solution to the problem of the C.R. school. It is a matter of the school with us and we are the only ones who can solve it.

I hope that the information that you have received is helpful and that you will continue to support our school.

I've just read where you're re-opening the probe into the supposed " Dirty Tricks " seminars conducted by Karl Rove. I attended the L.T.S. in Lexington, Kentucky, which was sponsored by the C.R.N.C. in August of 1972. I want to assure you that it was an above board operation dealing with the important aspects of campaigns.

Granted, there were some stories told of past experiences to exemplify things that should be done; i.e., setting up C.R. membership tables that are efficient in recruiting new members on campus, running effective mock elections, involving C.R. members in student government, and etc. There was, also, an example of things that shouldn't be done - the Dixon campaign incident. I don't recall any other examples of devious political pranks, but I do recall Karl telling us not to engage in such tactics.

I hope you agree with me when I say that any report of Karl Rove running a " Dirty Tricks " school is a malicious and contorted rumor of what actually transpired.

Sincerely yours,

Mr. George Bush

Dear Mr. Bush,

Enclosed you will find a copy of a newspaper article which appeared in the Milwaukee Sentinel. I am writing you this letter to discuss the subject matter which appears in said article.

Having participated in the 1971 Wisconsin College Republican Leadership Training School I was distressed to read that Karl Rove has been accused of giving talks on campaign espionage. To the best of my recollection Mr. Rove gave no lectures at any time regarding methods of political sabotage. Mr. Rove's presentations at the Wisconsin seminar dealt specifically on how to establish College Republican clubs and how to set up campaign organizations.

Mr. Rove did mention that security was a vital aspect of any campaign apparatus and did in passing mention a few incidents that all campaign staffs should watch out for in protecting themselves from possible infiltration by one's opponent.

Mr. Rove related a story, for example, where a youth volunteer for a Republican candidate stumbled by accident into the offices of the Democratic opponent one evening. It seems that both the Republican and Democratic candidates had campaign offices located in the same building and that the Republican volunteer pushed the wrong button in the elevator and found himself on the Democrat's floor. Next to the office door were the evenings trash collection wrapped up in plastic bags and the Republican volunteer took them back to his office. While sorting through the trash the volunteer found a sheet of paper listing the names of persons who had contributed to the Democrat's campaign. It turned out that one name on the list belonged to a gentleman who had also contributed to the Republican candidate. In fact the individual had contributed more money to the Democrat than to the Republican and Mr. Rove said that the Republican candidate had the contribution returned to the individual. The point of the story, I believe, was to be careful as to what you leave around a campaign headquarters.

There were a few stories of this nature told by Mr. Rove at the Wisconsin seminar. I do not remember them being part of his formal presentations rather they came up in the question and answer period. Their nature was not how to sabotage one's political opponent's campaign but things one should watch out for in an attempt to provide security in one's own political campaign.

In closing I would like to state that I believe the charges made by Mr. Rand and Mr. Freedman are unfounded. I feel that this incident is an attempt to use the hysteria of Watergate to affect the outcome of an election for CRNC Chairman. I am quite distressed to find my fellow Republicans using Watergate to promote their own political ends.

A person who is loyal to our party and who has dedicated so much time and effort to promote College Republican clubs on the Nation's campuses has been unjustly accused of wrongdoings. I am confident that Mr. Rove will be cleared of these false charges and I trust that you will see that the adverse publicity which has been created will be corrected.

If I may be of any service in the future please feel free to contact me.

Respectfully yours,

GOP Reopens Probe of 'Dirty Tricks'

Washington Post Special Washington, D. C.—Republican National Chairman George Bush has reopened an investigation into allegations that a paid official of the party laught political sabotage and "dirty tricks" during weekend seminars for college Republicans, including one in Wisconsin in August, 1971.

Two affidavits submitted to the Republican National Committee charged that Karl C. Rove 22, who was executive director of the College Republican National Committee (CRNC), an affiliate of the GOP, from June, 1971, to February, 1972, gave a talk on campaign espionage at a Wisconsin seminar.

The notarized statements were submitted by George C. Rand, of Cleveland, and Mark S. Freedman, of Chicago, both members of the college Republican group.

Rand, chairman of the Ohio National College Republicans, said in a telephone interview:

"He didn't specifically say it was a good idea but the results were what they wanted — to discredit and embarrass the candidate of the opposition. One of the reasons I didn't support him is the kind of thing he talked about in Wisconsin."

Karl C. Rove

[Rove was in Milwaukee on Aug. 30, 1971. On that date he discussed GOP campus voter registration at a press conference held at the Downtowner Motor Inn. At the time he was national director of Project: Open Door, a CRNC program to attract college students to the party.]

Freedman, who worked as a part-time employe of the CRNC last year while attending American University in Washington, said of Rove:

"They were paying his expenses and he was paid to teach campaign sabotage. He was proud of his abilities."

Bush said he will urge a committee to "get to the bottom" of charges against Rove.

Bush, who frequently has voiced a determination to keep the GOP free of any Watergate taint, reopened the investigation after the Washington Post drew his attention to evidence already in GOP hands.

Turn to Page 7, Col. 2

TRICKS News Reports Changed View Of Situation

He said he was unaware of the transcript at a time recording of Rove and a second man lecturing on campaign espionage and disruption, or of two affidavits from Iowa Republicans. He said he was aware that they heard a similar talk.

The I.A.P.C. written transcript of its contents, and the affidavits were supplied to the Washington Post by an anonymous caller who accused Bush's committee of "sweeping the matter under the carpet."

Rove said the tape recording may be false or altered. However, Bernie Robinson, a former CRNC member from Chicago, whose lecture on "dirty tricks" is recorded on the tape, said that the transcript and tape given to the Post are a "fair representation" of the talk.

A report by the committee clearing Rove of the "dirty tricks" charges and recommending his confirmation as chairman of the CRNC was a telling Bush's approval when the Post first approached him for information on the matter.

In a later conversation with a reporter, Bush said, "I'm a little less relaxed and more concerned than when you first brought it to our attention."

Rove's confirmation as CRNC chairman would be held up until the new investigation was complete, the Republican leader said.

"I'm not discouraging the allegation now," Bush explained. "It is important enough in terms of my desire to keep this place (the GOP) clean to look into this thing in further detail."

Having attended one of the College Republican Fieldman Schools at George Washington University in April, 1972, I can attest to the fact that campaign sabotage and "dirty tricks" were not taught. At no time were we advised to use illegal tactics against the opposition's campaign.

I have known Karl for one and a half years and it is inconsistent with his character to teach illegal and immoral practices to be used in a political campaign. I cannot believe that the charges against Karl Rove are true.

I am writing to you about a recent article in the Washington Post, which accuses Karl Rove of teaching political espionage and "dirty tricks" at student fieldman schools sponsored by the College Republican National Committee.

As a graduate of the Richmond Fieldman School, held in April of this year, I feel qualified to comment on these ridiculous charges. I was present at all of the sessions taught that weekend. I learned many valuable things about organizing and running an effective College Republican organization. I can assure that none of things taught or discussed at this school could possibly come under the category of "dirty tricks."

Karl Rove is a man who has done much to advance College Republicanism on our nation's campuses. I urge you to disregard such petty and unfounded accusations as those made by the Washington Post and judge the man on his accomplishments.

Thank you.

Dear Chairman Bush,

Again I'm writing you to ask you to publicly give your support to Karl C. Rove. The recent Post article has shown the price of delay.

I'm appalled at the tactics the pretenders to the chairmanship have taken. Your investigating committee heard all of the evidence and made its report. It cleared Karl of the malicious charges. Yet the people who oppose Karl were willing to do anything--even embarrass and discredit their party--in a last ditch attempt to prevent Karl's confirmation.

These people were ready to stab our party in the back to advance themselves. They willingly gave the Post evidence which had been dismissed by the committee as inconclusive. They willingly and unjustifiably have tried to drag our party down into Watergate just to screw Karl.

I hate to think what else they will do if they have time in their attempts to force you to deny Karl the title due him. I and the committee are sure of Karl's innocence. Don't let small and vicious people force your hand or prevent you from doing what you should.

Dear Mr. Bush:

I understand that Karl Rove's CRNC Fieldmen's schools have come under fire.

I may be considered a biased observer in that I have attended a number of these schools as a member of the faculty as well as a student. I would like to note, however, my opinion that these schools are the most valuable functions for training middle level campaign personnel that have come to my attention.

Indeed, I would say that these schools provide better training for campaign managers for small and medium size campaigns--local races, state legislative races, and poorly financed Congressional races--than any other political training seminars which I have ever attended.

Last fall, after applying for a job as a youth coordinator, I found myself as campaign director for the Republican candidate for Congress in Virginia's Fourth District. I brought to that job insights into proper press relations, scheduling, advance work, graphics, and volunteer uses, which I gained from the CRNC fieldmen's schools. All these were among the ingredients which I was able to contribute to Bob Daniel's upset election to Congress.

It is my sincerest belief that these schools are among the most important investments which the Republican Party makes in its own future.

Dear Chairman Bush:

In April of this year, I participated in a Student Fieldman School sponsored by the College Republican Federation of Virginia and run by College Republican National Committee Executive Director Larry Hart in Richmond, Virginia on the campus of the Medical College of Virginia.

This Fieldman School was one of the best College Republican activities I have ever participated in, and I felt it greatly enhanced my effectiveness as a College Republican leader and Republican Party worker at Washington & Lee University, where I go to school.

Now I understand that the charge has been made in the press that these Student Fieldman Schools are training seminars for political subversion and "dirty tricks." Nothing could be further from the truth. The Fieldman School in which I participated was a comprehensive survey of legitimate campaign techniques such as publicity and press relations, advertising and graphics, organization of volunteers and campaign groups, and sponsoring campaign appearances. In addition, the Fieldman School covered such specialized student campaign activities as student canvassing, "Youth For" organizations, mock elections, youth campaign brochures and newsletters, and statewide College Republican membership drives. At no time was there any discussion of sabotage operations, spying, or any other activity that might in any way be deemed questionable or unethical.

The faculty for the Richmond Student Fieldman School included, in addition to Mr. Hart, Mr. Robert R. Wood, now with the John Dalton for Lieutenant Governor campaign in Virginia, Mr. Karl C. Rove, recently elected Chairman of the College Republican National Committee, and Mr. Lee Atwater, now Executive Director of the C. R. N. C. These are all men with a great deal of integrity, who believe in the principles of the Republican Party, and who understand that a victory won by methods opposed to those principles is no victory at all.

I urge you not to credit these accusations and to allow the Student Fieldman School program to continue. It is a program which is not offered in any other place, and documentation of its effectiveness which I have seen is unquestionable. There is no doubt that the Republican Party has benefitted from these training seminars for College Republican leaders.

Thank you for your attention.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Bush:

I am writing to you now by deep and growing concern stemming from questions arising from the College Republican National Committee meeting held earlier this summer in Missouri. Specifically, I will deal with matters relating to the race for chairmanship of this organization.

My concern is with serious and unfounded charges that are now being brought by just the current chairman Mr. Carl Rove. In this letter, I want to share with you some impressions and details that I observed during the campaign. There have been several groups of College Republicans that have sought to doubt the candidacy of Mr. Rove with allegations of deceit and corruption. Nothing could be farther from the truth about the Rove campaign. Unfortunately, I cannot compliment Mr. Rove's opponents with the same campaign propriety.

When the national convention held in Cheney, Washington is an example of the style of campaign warfare by Mr. Rove's opponents. Miss G. Beth Vickery, then candidate for national vice-chairman, brought her campaign to Cheney. At her request, I traveled to Spokane and met with both Cynthia and her staff. At that meeting I was threatened with political destruction unless I changed my views on the national campaign and supported candidates according to her liking. As an enticement, I was offered a summer job with the Office of Economic Opportunity. The dropping of their challenge, against my state chairmanship, provided their main attraction to Missouri and other political events. I rejected their proposals and subsequently required their contribution.

I am also enclosing a letter by the Idaho chairman that provides an excellent overview of the situation. I sincerely hope this letter has given some insight into the character of these people now challenging Mr. Rove's position.

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I am writing this letter after learning of the accusations being made against Karl C. Rove by Mr. Rove's former opponents, Messrs. Edgeworth and Dolan, regarding his conduct and training at various Republican Fieldman Schools. I, as Chairman of the Mary Baldwin College Republicans, attended a Fieldman's School in Richmond, Virginia on the weekend of April 13th, 14th, and 15th of this year and can say, without equivocation, that at no time did Mr. Rove, or any of the other instructors, for that matter, teach or do anything that even remotely approximated espionage, in any way, shape, or form. I personally feel that it is more than coincidence that the two gentlemen bringing these accusations just happened to be Mr. Rove's opponents in the recent election for CRNC Chairman.

I have known and worked with Mr. Rove for three years now and found these charges absolutely ridiculous and incredible to believe. The Republican Party is going through a trying enough time right now without dragging more good peoples' names through the mud. College Republicans is supposed to be a proving and training ground for work in politics now and later on in our lives. To me, this is not what College Republicans is supposed to be all about.

Thank you very muc for your co-operation and attentinn to this matter.

Dear Chairman Bush,

I am writing this letter on behalf of Karl Rove, who in my judgement is an outstanding person as well as young Republican leader.

I attended the College Republican workshop on the weekend of August 3, and left with a feeling of great accomplishment. The two days were packed with sessions dealing with the organization of College Republican clubs on the state and local level, and the running of campaigns. Not once did Karl advocate the use of dirty politics, in fact throughout the workshop he stressed the importance of running a clean campaign.

Another reason I believe in Karl is because since I have been back in Washington he has gone out of his way to help me on the newly organized College Republican club at Oregon State University.

I realize the predicament you are in, these are hard times for the Republican party but I also feel if we lose Karl Rove the loss will be the party's.

Sincerely Yours,

Debbie Wilkinson

Dear Chairman Bush,

On August 3rd and 4th, I attended a fieldman school at American University that was directed by Karl C. Rove. This school was one of the finest political seminars I have ever attended. The school was a very intense affair with courses in canvassing, membership, recruitment, and campaign organization. At no time during this school did Rove or any of the instructors advocate or suggest the use of any type of "dirty tricks" or campaign espionage. In fact, at several points of the school strong statements were made against the use of dirty tactics.

If you would like to ask me any questions about the school I will be staying at the Capitol Hill Hotel until the 30th of August.

Thank you very much.

Dear Sir,

After reading the story the Washington Post printed about Karl Rove last Thursday, I felt it necessary to write to you in Karl's defence. The Fieldman School I attended was during the period mentioned. It was at NYU in, I believe, June of 1972.

Karl taught, and taught well, the basic mechanics of club and campaign organization. We learned how to get volunteers, how to organize them, and how to keep volunteers active. We also learned about the mysteries of the budget. How to get money and where to spend it. (How many bumperstrips to buy, what type of printing press to hire, etc.) He also taught us how to write newsletters and memorandums, and some campaign fliers.

We also had a session on "Special Projects". I wish to state here that I have no memory of the two incidents mentioned in the Post. What I do remember was a lecture by a gentleman who had designed TV ads for New York governor, Rockefeller. This session was wrapped up with a lecture on our responsibility to the American People. The tone of the Fieldman School I attended was just that, responsibility, not dirty tricks.

Thank you for your attention.

Dear Chairman Bush:

Recent charges against Karl Rove compel me to write this letter to you regarding my knowledge on the "Schools of dirty tricks."

I attended the student fieldman school at American University earlier this month. At the school there was absolutely no instruction on the use of "tricks" in campaigns. There was no encouragement to conduct tricks or even any questionable activities, indeed, the contrary was the case. There were repeated references to the importance of conducting entirely ethical campaigns. In the presentation on mock elections, we were told that the worst thing we could do was cheat.

Again, I repeat, the school at American University could far more accurately be characterized as a lecture on ethics than a school for tricks.

For many weeks I have heard talk of the oppositions for National Chairman's threats to "get" Rove. It is shocking how far they will go, shocking to realize that they are willing even to destroy lives, to critically wound the Movement, and injure the very reputation of our Party.

Chairman Bush, if you would like, I would be happy to provide you with a notarized statement reiterating the contents of this letter.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Bush:

As program director of the American University College Republican club, I hosted the most recent CRNC Fieldman School, which was held on our campus on August 3, 4, and 5. I was a participant in that school and attended the entire program.

This statement is submitted to attest that at no time during the A.U. Fieldman School did Karl Rove or any other lecturer recommend or even suggest that anyone employ any illegal or improper tactics while participating in any political activity. Quite to the contrary, several speakers -- Rove included -- specifically cautioned against the use of "dirty tricks."

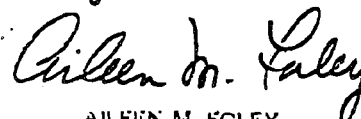

As you know from correspondence we had with your office last spring, our club has no tolerance for Watergate or any other illegal political activities. Had any suggestion been made last weekend that anyone should engage in improper tactics, we would have promptly terminated the seminar and asked the speaker to leave. Again, such action on our part was not necessary.

I have known and worked with Karl Rove for over a year now and was greatly surprised to see the Washington Post article of this date, asserting that he has taught "dirty tricks" to participants at other CRNC training sessions. If these charges are true, such behavior is totally inconsistent with my personal knowledge of Karl's character and nature. They would also conflict with the spirit and letter of the program he presented at American last week.

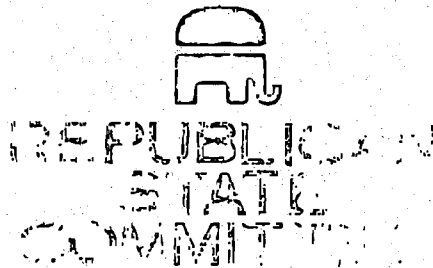

Respectfully yours,

Dear Chairman Bush:

I have seen the recent article in the Washington Post in which certain individuals have accused Karl Rove of conducting "espionage and infiltration" tactics at CRNC Student Fieldmen Schools. The perpetrators of these accusations were deeply involved in the immature and possibly illegal acts conducted by the Dolan-Edgeworth-Visknair faction at the 1973 CRNC National Convention. Rand was the midwest director for Edgeworth and Friedman served as the candidates' treasurer.

These false accusations no doubt stem from the fact that the majority of the CR's repudiated the Dolan-Edgeworth group at our National Convention.

It was my pleasure as Chairman of the host Federation to participate in and help with the arrangements of the 1972 Oklahoma City Student Fieldman School conducted by Mr. Rove. This school was of tremendous benefit to our efforts in the 1972 campaign and provided assistance to individuals in the Nixon and Barlett campaigns.

The accusation that Rove taught espionage techniques is absurd. To the contrary, Rove stated that during the 1970 Smith-Stevenson campaign (to which the Post referred) any campaign worker ran the tremendous risk of landing in jail without bail courtesy of Mayor Daley's police should any "dirty tricks" take place.

I am shocked by these reckless charges made by Rand and Friedman at the direction of the Dolan-Edgeworth forces. I would question not only their morals in fostering such a lie but also their belief and dedication to the Republican Party. These accusations and smears are only designed to undermine the legal results of the 1973 CRNC Convention and destroy the effectiveness of the College Republican movement.

Sir:

I read with amazement (New York Post, August 10, 1973,) allegations that Karl Rove "taught political sabotage and 'dirty tricks' during weekend seminars for College Republicans." I assume these charges are aimed at the Fieldman School.

I have attended two of these schools, one at New York University, last summer and another at the American University, August 3, 4 and 5 of this year. I can assure you that these charges are totally without basis, insofar as these particular seminars were concerned.

The perfidious motivation of those who are making these charges are totally incomprehensible to me, particularly at a time when members of our party have been unduly harrassed by the Press.

In all of my dealings with Karl, I have found him to be of high moral character, and his seminars on College Republican organizations and youth campaigns were very helpful.

We know that when your investigation is complete, and all of the facts are known, you will find that all of the charges were wholly fabricated.

Dear Sir,

The Washington Post article on College Republican fieldmen schools has not appeared in our Washington papers. Though not knowing the exact charges, I would like to express my faith in Karl Love's competence and integrity.

I attended two Republican schools in the past year, both led by Karl. I found the schools to be a source of much sound and information, and the general opinion of them, as just an outside critic. The schools were devoted to the organization of college clubs -- membership, programs and speakers, newsletters, funds. We also discussed voter registration, absentee ballots, and an analysis of precinct voting returns.

These were not weekends devoted to political sabotage and chicanery. The Republican Party is certainly not synonymous with dirty tricks; nor are the college Republicans. Indeed, I believe college students are less tolerant of election "tricks" than the population in general.

Karl is expected to have a growth of new recruits to the college level as Executive Director. Untruthful denigrations and a newspaper article that has not been used and the growth of the movement Karl will continue to chairmen. I urge you to express faith in Karl so he can get about our C.R.C. business.

Dear Chairman Bush:

It has come to my attention that, in an article in the Washington Post of August 10, 1973, Mr. Karl Rove is accused of teaching "dirty tricks" in the student Fieldman schools he ran as Executive Director of the College Republican National Committee. I attended one of these schools (at New York University in July, 1972), was present at another (at Harvard University in March, 1973), and have talked with several students who have attended other Fieldman schools. I would like to shed what light I can on the charges in the Post article.

It is true that Mr. Rove, in these Fieldman schools, did tell stories about various campaigns he has worked on - I remember one story which is essentially the story of the infiltrator into the Dixon campaign as reported by the Post, and several others. The primary purpose of these stories was, as far as I could tell, to enliven the long, intensive political seminars. Although I remember no explicit warning not to imitate the actions described, there is no question in my mind that these stories were not intended to encourage the questionable type of activities they portrayed. This interpretation is indicated by the fact that my notes for the course contain no references whatsoever to the stories, but do contain at least two explicit warnings not to engage in illegal or immoral activities in campaigns.

The appropriateness of such stories, which could be subject to misinterpretation, in a training program for campaigners may be questioned, particularly in these days when politicians, like Caesar's wife, must be above even the slightest appearance of impropriety. However, there is no question in my mind that the charges in the Post article are based on evidence taken out of context and greatly exaggerated.

Please let me know if I can be of any further assistance to you in this matter.

Sincerely,

Anne E. Mitchell

August 27, 1971

Dear Chairman Bush,

I read about the allegations regarding Karl Rove in the Washington Post with great amazement and sorrow.

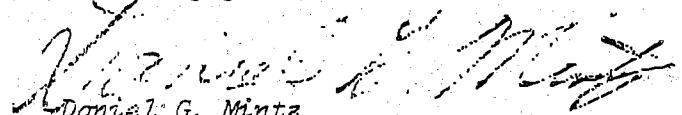

Amazement, because I have taught at three of these schools and attended one other, and not once was any reference made to "dirty tricks" or any other kind of political espionage. Amazement, further, because practically everyone who has attended these schools has come away with nothing but the highest of praise.

At any school that I was present, when stories such as those related in the Post article were told, they were described as humorous events not as methods of political action.

My second reaction, contrary to my initial response was one of sorrow. First, because I am getting tired in a broad sense of fellow Republicans trying to destroy their party by going to the media first instead of complaining to Republican officials.

Second, because we are continuing to allow a group of desperate so-called Republicans attack our party through lies and innuendos. As long as we will not stand up and say that the majority of our College Republican youth elected Karl Rove and that is our final decision, they will continue to use this route to redress their petty complaints.

Dear Chairman Bush,

This letter is in response to your request for recollections concerning the Fieldman Schools. As I understand it, you are asking about 350 people who attended seventeen Fieldman Schools to write to you about this matter.

I have been present at four of the schools. However, at three of them (Harvard, American University and Richmond, Virginia) I was only present for a few hours to give a speech on the state legislative race of Senator Roy M. Goodman of New York, for whom I was campaign manager. Therefore, my information in those cases is not based on extensive attendance.

The only school at which I attended all of the sessions was the New York University Fieldman School held in New York City last summer. I was attending as a student, and as Vice Chairman of the New York State College Republicans. During the course of this school, Karl Rove and others spoke on many issues, primarily how to run a "youth for" campaign and how to organize a campus College Republican club. I do not recall any instance at this school, or during my limited attendance at the others, at which I heard Karl Rove encourage what could be construed as "dirty tricks."

Dear Mr. Bush:

Articles appearing in The New York Times and The Washington Post regarding the College Republican Fieldman School of the weekend of August 3rd have recently been brought to my attention. Those portions of the articles that claimed 'Watergate' type tactics were taught are to the best of my knowledge without a factual base.

I was in attendance for the Saturday session, during that time there were no instructions concerning any activity that I would consider in any way unethical. Unfortunately, I was not present for the Sunday session and can not attest as to what happened at that time.

I have complete faith in the integrity of Karl Rove and the CRNC. I trust that this matter will shortly be resolved and the falsehoods concerning the Fieldman School delt with.

To Whom It May Concern,

Since 1971, I have attended approximately six campaign schools sponsored by the College Republican National Committee. At each one of these schools, Karl Rove was directly involved, either as Executive Director of the C.R.N.C. or as a major participant during the time I was Executive Director from February through June of this year.

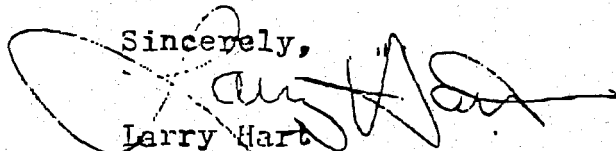

Most of the schools had much the same format, covering nuts and bolts subjects needed for those who were interested in helping to mobilize support for Republican candidates for office on college campuses.

At a number of these schools, an anecdote was told concerning an incident during the Republican U.S. Senate campaign in Illinois in 1970 where somebody used the name of "Roy Thompson" to work in the opposition headquarters and in fact attempted to sabotage the opening of one of the opposition's headquarters by passing out flyers in skid row neighborhoods inviting the derelicts to a party.

This story, which became known as the "Roy Thompson story", was told in a very humorous vain and in the context of an activity not to be engaged in should those attending the school work in a future campaign.

To suggest that either this anecdote was used as a serious effort to engage or recruit Campus Republicans in campaign espionage or that any of these student campaign schools were used to advocate this type of activity would normally be merely laughable. However, in the context of allegations which have been made in this regard, it is an outrageous libel on Mr. Karl Rove and all of us who have been associated with the College Republican movement.

Dear Chairman Bush,

I am writing to you as a concerned young adult who shares your determination to disassociate "Watergate" from the GOP. It is a difficult task, especially here in the South, where the Republican Party has only recently gained a firm foothold. Difficult or no, we must push this point in order to have any measure of success in 1974.

With this in mind, I find it quite appalling that a group of people that call themselves Republicans would be so callous as to offer harmful and slanderous information to that bastion of anti-Nixon and anti-Republican sentiment, The Washington Post. I am referring to the recent charges made against Karl Rove that appeared in the August 10, edition of The Post. Any well-meaning Republican would not have resorted to such self-serving tactics as were employed by those who wish to capitalize on intra-party problems.

As a personal acquaintance of Mr. Rove, I cannot speak too highly of Karl. The most impressive of his numerous programs, the organization of student campaign schools, is now the subject of harsh and undue criticism. I have attended two of these schools, one in Charleston, S. C., conducted in July of 1972, and the most recent school at the American University. I assure you that "dirty tricks" were neither taught nor condoned at these conferences.

It is my sincere hope that the matter concerning Karl's confirmation as CR Chairman will be resolved in his favor. It would be most unfortunate to negate Karl's hard work and positive accomplishments as a result of contrived opposition.

DEAR MR BUSH IT HAS COME TO MY ATTENTION THAT KARL ROVE HAS BEEN ACCUSED OF HOLDING SEMINARS ON POLITICAL SABOTAGE AND DIRTY TRICKS FOR COLLEGE REPUBLICANS. THAT ACCUSATION IS ABSOLUTELY FALSE.

I FIRST ATTENDED ONE OF KARLS STUDENT FIELDMAN SCHOOLS AT BROWN UNIVERSITY IN THE FALL OF 1971. AS CHAIRMAN OF THE NEW ENGLAND COLLEGE REPUBLICAN FEDERATION I ATTENDED SEVERAL OTHERS IN AN ADVISORY CAPACITY INCLUDING LEXINGTON KENTUCKY SUMMER OF 1972 MANCHESTER NEW HAMPSHIRE OCTOBER 1972 AND BOSTON MASSACHUSETT S MARCH 1973. THESE SCHOOLS LAST FROM FRIDAY EVENING UNTIL SUNDAY EVENING WITH LECTURES ON SUCH SUBJECTS AS VOTER REGISTRATION STUDENT RALLIES NEWSLETTERS BUDGETS FUND RAISING AND ALL THE OTHER INFORMATION NEEDED TO RUN A SUCCESSFUL STUDENT ARM OF A POLITICAL CAMPAIGN. FROM TIME TO TIME TELLS A FUNNY STORY ABOUT SOME CAMPAIGN EXPERIENCE HE HAS HAD OR HEARD ABOUT. THE PURPOSE OF THESE STORIES IS TO ADD A LITTLE HUMOR TO THE HEAVY WORK SCHEDULE OF LECTURES AND TO GIVE AN EDUCATIONAL EXAMPLE OF WHAT CAN HAPPEN DURING A CAMPAIGN.

ONE OF KARLS STORIES IS ABOUT A PRANK PULLED ON THE DEMOCRATS IN CHICAGO 1970. AT THE END OF THE STORY KARL IS QUICK TO POINT OUT THE DAMAGE THE PRANK EVENTUALLY DID TO THE REPUBLICANS AND HOW MUCH TROUBLE THE PRANKSTERS GOT INTO. IT WAS A STORY OF WHAT NOT TO DO. MR BUSH AT NO TIME DURING ANY OF KARLS FIELDMAN SCHOOLS HAS HE EVER ADVOCATED ANY SORT OF POLITICAL SABOTAGE OR DIRTY TRICKS.

IF I CAN BE OF ANY FURTHER ASSISTANCE ON THIS OR ANY OTHER MATTER PLEASE LET ME KNOW. SINCERELY

Dear Chairman Bush:

The Friday morning, August 10th Milwaukee Sentinel carried an article originating in the Washington Post, contending that Karl Rove, CRNC Chairman, systematically taught political sabotage at the many training schools he directed. The source of the story was statements allegedly describing the happenings at the 1971 training school held in Lake Delton, Wisconsin. The statements were made by George Rand and Mark Freedman.

I attended as well as assisted in organizing the school in question, and to the best of my knowledge Karl Rove never presented a "How to do it" seminar on political sabotage. This is not to say that the opposition's capability to institute systematic sabotage was not a subject of discussion, nor would I deny that preventative techniques were explained.

During Karl Rove's tenure as CRNC Executive Director, and in his recent campaign for CRNC Chairman, Karl stressed politics as a positive and continuing vehicle for society's improvement. Karl did not in any way suggest or imply that politics should be used as a tool of embarrassment and innuendo. The charges made relative to the Lake Delton training school point to the necessity, Chairman Bush, of the need to firmly establish Karl Rove's election as CRNC Chairman, thus eliminating the forum for these vituperators.

As always, I remain open and available for further inquiry.

I was astounded by the newspaper accounts which took, wholly out of context, one or two humoress anecdotes about campaign pranks shared with the attending audience by Messers Rove and Robinson. These accounts of the "Fourth Estate" strongly-- and wrongly--implied that these stories were part of a sinister proselytism of innocent youth. Dear Mr. Bush,

I was very disturbed on reading Friday morning's Washington Post and learning of the accusations being made against the College Republican National Chairman, Karl Rove and the apparent attempts to oust him from that position.

The charges that he has advocated so-called dirty tricks at CRNC Fieldman Training Schools I know from firsthand experience to be false. I attended the most recent School at American University and at no time did Karl in any way advocate doing anything which could conceivably be interpreted as falling into the area of questionable campaign practices. He and the other speakers dealt solely with the organization and effective conduct of a youth campaign. The information that was provided was not only ethical but invaluable to all of us who attended. These programs are without a doubt one of the most useful programs that could be made available in the youth political arena.

As a former officer in the University of Virginia College Republican Club, I also know from personal experience what an outstanding job Karl did as Executive Director of the CRNC. He helped our club out in innumerable ways and was always willing to lend whatever time and assistance was necessary to improve our and other clubs.

Removing Karl from the leadership position that he has so capably occupied would be a disaster to the future of not only the CRNC, but to the whole Republican drive to bring young voters into our party; for Karl is at the forefront of this movement.

I certainly hope that you and the other members of the Republican National Committee give Karl your full support and allow him to continue the valuable work that he has done over the past few years.

Dear Chairman Bush,

Two weeks ago I attended a College Republican Student Fieldman School in Washington. This school was an excellent opportunity for over thirty other College Republicans and myself to learn various methods of student campaigning.

The Friday following the seminar, I read an article in the Washington Post directed at Karl C. Rove, the instructor of the school. This article said that Rove used these schools to teach college students Watergate tactics and dirty tricks. I must say that I strongly disagree with this story! The school that I attended was the exact opposite of a dirty tricks seminar. Karl Rove stressed the importance of extreme honesty in politics throughout the school and discouraged the use of any type of dubious campaign tactics. I am sure that anyone else that attended the school would agree with me.

I certainly hope this matter can be cleared up shortly and Karl Rove's name can be cleared.

Dear Mr. Bush:

I am writing to you in reference to the recent circulation of propaganda concerning College Republicans.

During the month of July, I interned for Senator Strom Thurmond. At the conclusion of my internship, I decided to attend the Fieldman School sponsored by the C. R. 's on August 3rd, 4th, and 5th. I assure you that there were no underhanded tactics advocated at these seminars. I find this very shocking and completely absurd. I think Karl Rove and Lee Atwater did an excellent job of planning and conducting this school.

If there is anything I can do in South Carolina to help clear up this matter, please feel at ease to call on me.

Very truly,

Douglas Clark

Dear Chairman Bush:

The August 10 article in THE WASHINGTON POST accusing Karl Rove of teaching "dirty tricks" proves to me how many opinions are printed without substantiating evidence. If Mr. Saar had attended the most recent CRNC Fieldman School held at American University less than two weeks ago, perhaps he would have hesitated to make his accusation. I begin to wonder if Mr. Saar really knows any facts presented by the Fieldman's School or if he is just going on heresay.

After attending the school here in Washington, I cannot find a simple "dirty trick" in approximately fifteen pages of notes taken during the seminar. Being a journalism major, I am interested in reporting only the facts. I tend to wonder if Mr. Saar knows the difference between fact and fiction!

I would be willing to turn my notes over to you, Mr. Bush, for I have nothing "submersive" to hide, nor would anyone who had attended the school.

If I can be of assistance to you or your assistants, please feel free to contact me.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Corder

Hon. George Bush, Chairman

Dear Mr. Bush:

I attended a College Republican National Committee Student Fieldman School at American University in Washington on August 3--5, 1973 and would like to make a few observations on it.

The attitude expressed was one of professionalism and common sense, particularly refreshing coming from college students. The lectures were crisp and to the point, and most topics were exhaustively covered.

One aspect of this attitude was the idea that, as expressed by Mr. Lee Atwater, "the stupidest thing you can do is cheat."

Another idea that we found was that, due to the normal apathy present on a college campus, A Republican club could run a successful program simply by organizing properly.

Therefore, any references to "dirty tricks" were tangential, as anecdotes told between sessions of little nasties that people (not necessarily the speakers) pulled at the tender ages of sixteen and seventeen, or given in session as specific examples of "what not to do."

In sum, I found the program run by serious, sensible young adults who had a clear idea of orderly, clean political operation. I hope future schools will be as informative and well-run as the one I attended.

Sincerely yours,

Michael J. Davies

Mr. George Bush, Chairman
REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE
310 First Street, S.E.
Washington, D.C. 20003

Dear Chairman Bush:

With all the furor surrounding the College Republican effort, I thought I might take some time to tell you my views. I recently attended (August 3, 4, & 5) a Fieldmans School at American University and found it most beneficial. The expertise in campaign management I received was of immense relevance and value. The concepts discussed and taught were extremely worthwhile.

Those who attended it with me came away prepared to knowledgeably deal with the various elements involved in an election campaign. All items discussed were highly respectable and "Above board." At no time during this seminar did Karl Rove, or anyone else for that matter, discuss anything shady or illegal; in fact, Karl, Lee and other speakers repeatedly hammered home to steer clear of such activities and not lower oneself in such a fashion.

Others who attended, that I have conversed with on this subject, have concurred on this. Mr. Chairman, I feel I benefited tremendously from that Fieldmans School, and from Karl Rove's association with it, and feel the College Republican effort would suffer a terrible loss if either the school or Karl Rove were terminated.

Sincerely,

Gregory D. Hollen,
Vice-President

AFFIDAVIT

I, Lee Atwater, do hereby swear that on the four occasions on which I attended student fieldman schools directed and participated in by Karl C. Rove, there were no references to political "dirty tricks" that I heard which could in any way be interpreted as encouraging such "dirty tricks." I attended their schools as an instructor on two occasions and as a student on two occasions, and the emphasis was on constructive campaigning using organization and canvassing. During the course of one school held in Charleston, South Carolina in July, 1972, a 20 minute anecdote similar to the one described in the Washington Post on August 10 was told. It was told as a funny story during a coffee break and Karl Rove as well as the other instructors all stressed that this type of activity should not be pursued or duplicated.

I, Virginia D. Benjamin, do hereby swear that on the two occasions on which I attended Student Fieldman's Schools directed and participated in by Karl C. Rove, namely in Manchester, New Hampshire on Sunday, October 1, 1972, and in Cambridge, Massachusetts on Saturday and Sunday, March 3-4, 1973, there were no references to political "dirty tricks" that I heard which could in any way be interpreted as encouraging such "dirty tricks." The emphasis at these schools was on constructive campaign ideas and activities, a thoroughly positive approach. Any reference made to "dirty tricks" was made to discourage, rather than encourage, students from engaging in such activities.

To the best of my knowledge, there was no attempt by Mr. Rove, or any other staff member, to teach "dirty tricks" at these schools.

It is my understanding that the purpose of these schools is to teach campus and campaign organization, and not campaign practices.

I have been active in the Republican Party for over two years, and have been an officer in several Republican youth groups as well as a delegate to local, county, district, and state Republican conventions in 1972. Last year I was Chairman of the University of Tennessee at Knoxville Young Voters for the President.

The weekend of April 27-29, 1973, I attended a College Republican Fieldman School at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tennessee. The school was sponsored by the Tennessee College Republican Federation and was taught by officers and former officers of the College Republican National Committee (CRNC). The officers and former officers were Joe Abate, CRNC Chairman; Larry Hart, CRNC Executive Director; and Karl Rove, former CRNC Executive Director.

The school was most informative and covered areas of campaign organization, media and graphics, press releases, polling, and other campaign activities. At no time, to my knowledge, was any topic related to campaign sabotage or other illegal or unethical practices discussed in the sessions.

I do remember one time, between the regular sessions, when Karl Rove and myself were discussing campaigns we had worked in. There may have been others present, but I cannot remember who they were. I told some stories from Tennessee campaigns and Karl Rove discussed some Illinois campaigns, in particular Ralph T. Smith's U.S. Senate campaign. I do not recall everything we discussed but none of it covered areas of campaign sabotage or other illegal or unethical activities.

The entire school was conducted in a very ethical manner, and at no time did I hear Karl Rove, Joe Abate, Larry Hart, or anyone else advocate or encourage any activities such as campaign sabotage or any related activities.

I solemnly swear that the above is a true and complete recollection to the best of my knowledge, information, and belief.

These schools in my opinion were conducted to teach the basics of college and campaign organization and not campaign practices, either good or bad.

Dear Chairman Bush,

Today I reviewed an article concerning CR's on p. A16 of the August 10th Washington Post. I don't need to imagine who might have sent it in — it's obviously the work of Bob Edgeworth & cohorts.

I should, however, like to comment upon the charges about 'dirty tricks' instruction at Student Fieldman Schools (CRNC) since I attended the July 1972 school in Charleston, South Carolina.

References and a brief discussion were made to 'dirty tricks' at that school. Why? — 1. to familiarize us with the kinds of dirty tricks that might be played on us, to know the importance of using a paper shredder (the kind of info. that could be gleaned from us by the opposition by going through trash cans in realize what kinds of opposition infiltration were most likely. Karl's discussion was a warning about what to expect. He emphasized very clearly that we should not undertake such activities as they were very damaging if discovered — the whole focus of the fieldman schools were how to win campaigns through better organization, professionalism, and effective use of resources. I repeat, it was obvious that this informal bloc of instruction was designed to alert us to the kinds of tricks that might be played on us and ① to avoid using them ourselves because of the embarrassment in getting caught.

I must add that the Bob Edgeworth cohorts are very sore losers when they resort to seriously misrepresenting the facts, distorting the truth, and outright lies.

I did notice that you, like myself, have always been interested in keeping our banks clean. I fully share your sentiments as the matter is very close to me. During 1972,

I served as the State Chairman of the Tennessee C.R.'s Federation. For the new elections in March of '73. To select my successor, my Co-Chairman, Jim Folbner, used numerous dishonest and illegal methods to win the chairmanship. I must add that I did not support him, and, in fact, ran against him unsuccessfully at the last second as a protest against his tactics (the first opposing candidate dropped out on the night of the Convention itself!)

During Jim's campaign, [REDACTED]

escapade fell on its face as I detected it 9 days before convention, but concrete evidence was then lacking to prove this corruption beyond a shadow of a doubt. (Gurzhel, he'd

... his personal word of honor to drop out of the race (if I didn't expose him.)
 He broke it on the day of the Convention and the sympathetic delegation covered for him.
 Since then, more evidence came out at the CRNC Convention, which is adequate to prove these [redacted]

 2-term State Treasurer. Who gave Jim all the support at our Convention? who helped him cover up the [redacted] predecessor Jack Garland, & Louis Rickett.

In the near future, I may seriously consider formal charges against Falkner for his outrageous conduct (both in a court of law and before the Executive Committee of the Tennessee Republican Party).

If you are interested in keeping our Party clean at the CR level, I encourage you to recognize Hart as next Chairman and tell the thoroughly corrupt Edgeworth people where to shove it.

I hope to hear from you soon on the matters presented in this letter.

Bush's Clear Skies for Coal: The Best Case Scenario

Summary: Utilities with coal-fired plant in their portfolios supply half of the nation's electric power and face a variety of upcoming Clean Air Act requirements that are shaping their capital expenditure rates and the general economics of generation fleets.

A December 2000 decision to regulate mercury as a hazardous air pollutant has been a key driver in accelerating industry's efforts to consolidate various Clean Air Act requirements into a "multi-pollutant" strategy. The Department of Energy estimates non-mercury-related capital expenditures to be $5-9 billion over the next decade, with mercury representing an additional $1.7-5 billion.

In this report, we identify the Bush Administration's Clear Skies Initiative, a three-pollutant plan, as the best-case scenario for coal-fired utilities. Clear Skies has been proposed as legislation this session, but we believe that the real action will occur in the 108th Congress set to convene in January 2003, after this fall's elections. The other alternatives — Congress enacting a stricter multi-pollutant program or the Environmental Protection Agency implementing the Clean Air Act as it stands and adding maximum achievable control technology requirements for mercury — both pose significantly higher compliance costs to coal-fired capacity owners in our analysis.

Further, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's recently proposed Standard Market Design rule has interesting implications for coal-fired asset viability as the ability of an owner to limit transmission access and protect less efficient generation assets looks set to decline. We see improved transmission access for newer, more efficient, cleaner-burning plants as finally reintroducing to the generation market the economic drivers that were assumed in the passage of the 1990 Clean Air Act Amendments, but that were derailed by the 1992 Energy Policy Act and its implementation.

NEWS: Utility Shareholders Demand Liability Disclosure --

By NEELA BANERJEE

A group of shareholders that includes the Connecticut treasurer's office and several religious organizations have begun a campaign to compel the largest electric utilities in the nation to publish information about liabilities they might face because of their emission of gases that contribute to global warming.

Led by the State of Connecticut Plans and Trust Fund and members of the New York-based Interfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility, the shareholder coalition has filed resolutions to be voted upon at the annual meetings later this year of American Electric Power, the Southern Company, Xcel Energy Inc., the TXU and the Cinergy Corporation (sic).

The shareholders contend that there are hidden risks at the large power companies because of their release of carbon dioxide, which is widely thought to be linked to global warming, and the pollutants sulfur dioxide, nitrogen oxide and mercury. They contend that companies could face risks if emissions of carbon dioxide were regulated and limited, which many environmentalists and some power companies think is inevitable. They also assert that the electric utilities may have to grapple with litigation linked to the emissions.

"In American Electric Power's own disclosure to the S.E.C., they acknowledge climate change as a risk factor," said Denise L. Nappier, the Connecticut treasurer. "What they haven't done, and what most utility companies haven't done, so far, is present to their shareholders a comprehensive assessment of these risks and how they plan to address them."

American Electric Power, the nation's largest utility, has filed a letter seeking no action against it from the Securities and Exchange Commission if it chooses not to include the shareholder resolution in the proxy statement for its annual meeting. A company spokeswoman said that American Electric Power already provided the kind of information the shareholders seek, and accused them of seeking to stop the burning of fossil fuels for electricity generation.

But the investors contend that they seek disclosure of information rather than a radical change in business practices.

National Sanctity of Human Life Day, 2003

By the President of the United States of America
A Proclamation

Our nation was built on a promise of life and liberty for all citizens. Guided by a deep respect for human dignity, our Founding Fathers worked to secure these rights for future generations, and today we continue to seek to fulfill their promise in our laws and our society. On National Sanctity of Human Life Day, we reaffirm the value of human life and renew our dedication to ensuring that every American has access to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

As we seek to improve quality of life, overcome illness, and promote vital medical research, my Administration will continue to honor our country's founding ideals of equal dignity and equal rights for every American. Every child is a priority and a blessing, and I believe that all should be welcomed in life and protected by law. My Administration has championed compassionate alternatives to abortion, such as helping women in crisis through maternity group homes, encouraging adoption, promoting abstinence education, and passing laws requiring parental notification and waiting periods for minors.

The Born-Alive Infants Protection Act, which I signed into law in August 2002, is an important contribution to our efforts to care for human life. This important legislation helps protect the most vulnerable members of our society by ensuring that every infant born alive, including one who survives abortion, is considered a person and receives protection under Federal law. It helps achieve the promises of the Declaration of Independence for all, including those without the voice and power to defend their own rights.

Through ethical policies and the compassion of Americans, we will continue to build a culture that respects life. Faith-based and community organizations and individual citizens play a critical role in strengthening our neighborhoods and bringing care and comfort to those in need. By helping fellow citizens, these groups recognize the dignity of every human being and the possibilities of every life; and their important efforts are helping to build a more just and generous Nation. By working together to protect the weak, the imperfect, and the unwanted, we affirm a culture of hope and help ensure a brighter future for all.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GEORGE W. BUSH, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and laws of the United States, do hereby proclaim Sunday, January 19, 2003, as National Sanctity of Human Life Day. As we reflect upon the sanctity of human life, I call upon all Americans to recognize this day with appropriate ceremonies in our homes and places of worship, to rededicate ourselves to compassionate service, and to reaffirm our commitment to respecting the life and dignity of every human being.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this fourteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord two thousand three, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and twenty-seventh.

National Sanctity of Human Life Day, 2002 by the President of the United States of America a Proclamation

This Nation was founded upon the belief that every human being is endowed by our Creator with certain "unalienable rights." Chief among them is the right to life itself. The Signers of the Declaration of Independence pledged their own lives, fortunes, and honor to guarantee inalienable rights for all of the new country's citizens. These visionaries recognized that an essential human dignity attached to all persons by virtue of their very existence and not just to the strong, the independent, or the healthy. That value should apply to every American, including the elderly and the unprotected, the weak and the infirm, and even to the unwanted.

Thomas Jefferson wrote that, "[t]he care of human life and happiness and not their destruction is the first and only legitimate object of good government." President Jefferson was right. Life is an inalienable right, understood as given to each of us by our Creator.

President Jefferson's timeless principle obligates us to pursue a civil society that will democratically embrace its essential moral duties, including defending the elderly, strengthening the weak, protecting the defenseless, feeding the hungry, and caring for children -- born and unborn. Mindful of these and other obligations, we should join together in pursuit of a more compassionate society, rejecting the notion that some lives are less worthy of protection than others, whether because of age or illness, social circumstance or economic condition. Consistent with the core principles about which Thomas Jefferson wrote, and to which the Founders subscribed, we should peacefully commit ourselves to seeking a society that values life -- from its very beginnings to its natural end. Unborn children should be welcomed in life and protected in law.

On September 11, we saw clearly that evil exists in this world, and that it does not value life. The terrible events of that fateful day have given us, as a Nation, a greater understanding about the value and wonder of life. Every innocent life taken that day was the most important person on earth to somebody; and every death extinguished a world. Now we are engaged in a fight against evil and tyranny to preserve and protect life. In so doing, we are standing again for those core principles upon which our Nation was founded.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GEORGE W. BUSH, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and the laws of the United States, do hereby proclaim Sunday, January 20, 2002, as National

11:46 A.M. (L)

HIS HOLINESS POPE JOHN PAUL II: Mr. President, it gives me great pleasure to welcome you on your first visit since you assumed the office of the President of the United States. I warmly greet the distinguished First Lady and the members of your entourage. I express heart-felt good wishes that your presidency will strengthen your country in its commitment to the principles which inspired American democracy from the beginning, and sustained the nation and its remarkable growth. These principles remain as valid as ever as you face the challenges of the new country opening up before us.

Your nation's founders, conscious of the immense natural and human resources with which your land has been blessed by the Creator, were guided by a profound sense of responsibility towards the common good to be pursued in respect for the God-given dignity and inalienable rights of all. America continues to measure herself by the nobility of her founding vision in building this society of liberty, equality and justice under the law. In the century which has just ended, these same ideals inspired the American people to resist two totalitarian systems, based on an atheistic vision of man and society.

At the beginning of this new century, which also marks the beginning of the third millennium of Christianity, the world continues to look to America with hope. And it does so with an acute awareness of the crisis of values being experienced in Western society, ever more insecure in the face of the ethical decisions, indispensable for humanity's future course.

In recent days, the world's attention has been focused on the process of globalization which has so greatly accelerated in the past decade, and which you and other leaders of the industrialized nations have discussed in Genoa. While appreciating the opportunities for economic growth and material prosperity, which this process offers, the Church cannot but express profound concern that our world continues to be divided no longer by the former political and military blocs, but by a tragic fault-line between those who can benefit from these opportunities and those who seem cut off from them.

The revolution of freedom of which I spoke at the United Nations in 1995 must now be completed by a revolution of opportunity, in which all the world's people actively contribute to the economic prosperity and share in its fruits. This requires leadership by those nations whose religious and cultural traditions should make them most attentive to the moral dimension of the issues involved.

Respect for human dignity and belief in the equal dignity of all the members of the human family demand policies aimed at enabling all people to access to the means required to improve their lives, including the technological means and skills needed for development. Respect for nature by everyone, a policy of openness to immigrants, the cancellation or significant reduction of the debt of poorer nations, the promotion of peace through dialogue and negotiation, the primacy of the rule of law; these are the priorities which the leaders of the developed countries cannot disregard. A global world is essentially a world of solidarity. From this point of view, America, because of her many resources, cultural traditions and religious values, has a special responsibility.

Respect for human dignity finds one of its highest expressions in religious freedom. This right is the first listed in your nation's Bill of Rights, and it is significant that the promotion of religious freedom continues to be an important goal of American policy in the international community. I want to express the appreciation of the whole Catholic Church for America's commitment in this regard.

Another area in which political and moral choices have the gravest consequences for the future of civilization concerns the most fundamental of human rights, the right to life itself. Experience is already showing how a tragic coarsening of consciences accompanies the assault on innocent human life in the womb, leading to accommodation and acquiescence in the face of other related evils, such as euthanasia, infanticide, and most recently, proposals for the creation for research purposes of human embryos, destined to destruction in the process.

A free and virtuous society, which America aspires to be, must reject practices that devalue and violate human life at any stage from conception until natural death. In defending the right to life, in law and through a vibrant culture of life, America can show a world the path to a truly humane future in which man remains the master, not the product of his technology.

Mr. President, as you carry out the tasks of the high office which the American people have entrusted to you, I assure you of a remembrance in my prayers. I am confident that under your leadership, your nation will continue to draw on its heritage and resources to help build a world in which each member of the human family can flourish and live in a manner worthy of his or her innate dignity. With these sentiments, I cordially invoke upon you and the beloved American people, God's blessings of wisdom, strength and peace.

Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT BUSH: Your Holiness, thank you very much. Mrs. Bush and I are honored to stand with you today. We're grateful for your welcome. You've been to America many times, and have spoken to vast crowds. You have met with four American Presidents before me, including my father. In every visit, and in every meeting, including our meeting today, you have reminded America that we have a special calling to promote justice and to defend the weak and suffering of the world. We remember your words, and we will always do our best to remember our calling.

Since October of 1978, you have shown the world not only the splendor of truth, but also the power of truth to overcome evil and to redirect the course of history. You have urged men and women of goodwill to take to their knees before God, and to stand unafraid before tyrants. And this has added greatly to the momentum of freedom in our time.

Where there's oppression, you speak of human rights. Where there's poverty, you speak of justice and hope. Where there's ancient hatred, you defend and display a tolerance that reaches beyond every boundary of race and nation and belief. Where there's great abundance, you remind us that wealth must be matched with compassion and moral purpose. And always, to all, you have carried the gospel of life, which welcomes the stranger and protects the weak and the innocent. Every nation, including my own, benefits from hearing and heeding this message of conscience.

Above all, you have carried the message of the Gospel into 126 nations, and into the third millennium, always with courage, and with confidence. You have brought the love of God into the lives of men, and that good news is needed in every nation, and every age.

Thank you again, your Holiness, for your kindness, and the honor of this meeting.

I END

Who Was Dabney?

Once in a while, a piece of postal history brings an individual's life into focus, if only for a brief moment. One such window onto the past came into my possession in the form of a letter about a slave hired out by his master to the Confederate government as a "rough carpenter." The folded letter is franked with a single 5-cent blue Richmond print overpaying the drop letter rate of two cents. Postmarked Danville, Virginia, May 12, 1863, it is addressed to Major W.L. Sutherlin, Quarter Master CSA, Danville, Virginia. The letter reads, in its entirety:

Danville, May 12, 1863.

Sir:

I have to request that you will have my negro man "Dabney" returned to duty under Mr. Dudley as a rough Carpenter, he having been originally hired to the Quartermaster's Department here as such.

In September last he was taken with small-pox and sent to the Small Pox Hospital, and having recovered he has been retained there as an attendant to this time. I wish him to be taken from there forthwith and put to work as above. I shall leave for Richmond tomorrow morning or I should have seen you in person.

Very respectfully,
P.M. Henry

P.S. I would be pleased if you would give Dabney a few days leave of absence in order to visit his wife.
P.M.H.

With only his first name to go by, what happened to Dabney following the war probably will never be known. And yet a lifetime of information has been compressed into the few sentences of a wartime letter.

I'm sure with the mail into the WH, it hasn't reached your desk. I've seen the list of invitees and it is very interesting. There are a lot of events that can get you out in the evening ...very few tempted me to not go home instead, if I had the chance. I think this is one I would have made the exception for....hope you can too.

Dear Mr. Rove:

On behalf of The Atlantic Monthly and Microsoft, I would like to invite you to a dinner conversation centered on the "State of the Union," which we will be hosting Wednesday, January 29th, at the Metropolitan Club in Washington, DC.

Our intent is to bring together 25 or so provocative conversationalists from the Congress, Administration, media and corporate sectors, for dinner and far-ranging discussion the evening following the President's State of the Union address. Leading the conversation will be editors of The Atlantic Monthly, drawing in part on a major editorial feature in our January/February issue, The Atlantic's "Real State of the Union."

I hope you will mark your calendar for this event in advance of receiving a more formal- and detailed- invitation in the coming days. Looking forward to seeing you on the 29th.

With best wishes,

PRESIDENT AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

November 21, 2002

The Honorable Karl Rove
Senior Advisor to the President
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Karl:

Thanks for taking our call last week. As promised, enclosed is a memorandum outlining the three points we raised, summarized as follows:

- Drug coverage for seniors: We ask that you ensure that the President's proposed FY04 Budget allocates sufficient funds to enable Republicans to successfully position themselves to craft a universal Medicare prescription drug benefit in 2003.
- Medicaid rebates: We ask that you intervene with OMB and not include in the President's FY04 Budget the Medicaid rebate proposal that was included in the President's FY03 budget, and that any other "surprise attacks" involving Medicaid pricing be avoided in the President's FY04 Budget.
- Domestic drug patents: We ask that you call Senators Gregg, Frist, and Hatch, and Congressman Tauzin to request their support for the President's proposed FDA rule and avoidance of any legislation in this area in the new Congress.

Thanks for your willingness to hear us out on these issues.

Sincerely,

Alan F. Holmer

MEMO FOR MR. ROVE'S CONSIDERATION RE: THREE RX DRUG ISSUES

I. MEDICARE RX BENEFIT & THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET PROPOSAL

Our first concern involves the critical issue of delivering on the promise of adding a prescription drug benefit to Medicare and, in particular, the importance of how this is addressed in January in the Administration's Budget proposal to Congress (for FY04).

As you well know, the political and public consensus is strong that it is time to add prescription drugs to the Medicare benefit package. President Bush campaigned in 2000 and 2002 on getting this done and, during the fall debates, virtually all successful Republican vulnerables and challengers promised to deliver a Medicare drug benefit. With the Republicans now in charge of the Senate as well as the House and the White House, a key strategic and tactical change will occur in the Medicare drug debate in 2003. Because Republicans control everything, they will be under tremendous pressure during the next Congress to produce some type of Medicare prescription drug bill. They cannot blame failure on the Democratic Senate.

Substantively, in addition to the level of overall Medicare reform, there are two key questions regarding the drug benefit:

1. Will Republicans support a voluntary benefit for all seniors or only for some?
2. Will Republicans support a private-sector delivery model inside of Medicare or a government-run delivery model?

We strongly believe that the winning strategy for President Bush is to endorse a Medicare drug benefit for ALL seniors that uses a private-sector delivery model inside of Medicare along the lines of the leading House and Senate bills in 2002.

The winning approach is built on the bills that passed the House in both 2000 (HR 3680) and 2002 (HR 4954) and that has been the leading proposal in the Senate Finance Committee sponsored by the Tripartisan Group (S. 2729 and S. 4310). We believe that, based on the fact that the House successfully passed this bill in 2000 and 2002, with Reps. Hastert, DeLay, and Thomas driving, they can do so again if the White House is willing to allocate sufficient funds. While Senate Republican Leaders have not been willing to drive a bill to the floor in the past, they all acknowledge that the Tripartisan bill is the leading bill and has more than enough votes to pass out of the Finance Committee (since Chairman Grassley and Senators Hatch, Snowe, Breaux, Jeffords and Frist strongly support it). If the White House is willing to allocate sufficient funds and to help build Senate consensus, then the Senate can likely produce a bill that can be successfully conferenced with the House.

Any such legislation obviously puts significant demands on the federal budget. In 2002, the two leading universally available drug benefit proposals were the House bill at $320 billion and the Senate Tripartisan bill at $375 billion. As you are aware, because next year's budget debate will include another year of the Baby Boom cohort with 2013, then an identical benefit becomes incrementally more expensive.

We ask that the President's Proposed FY04 Budget allocate enough money to enable Republicans to successfully position themselves to craft a universal Medicare prescription drug benefit for all seniors in 2003. The alternative, which would be to allocate only enough for a benefit for low-income seniors, will result in opponents characterizing Republicans as denying a meaningful benefit to millions of seniors – in violation of a core tenet of the Medicare program: that everyone eligible for Medicare is eligible for all the benefits. Democrats would passionately argue that Medicare has always been a universal health security program for all seniors, not a welfare program only for low-income seniors and that the Republicans were fundamentally changing the nature of the Medicare entitlement.

II. MEDICAID DRUG PRICING & THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET PROPOSAL

The second issue, the Medicaid program, also involves the upcoming Administration Budget proposal.

By and large, we have a free-market pricing system for drugs in the United States. One notable exception is in the Medicaid program for the poorest. Unfortunately, the Medicaid program controls prices and requires that manufacturers provide a mandatory rebate to the Federal government for every drug sold to a Medicaid recipient. We got a very big shock last year when OMB included a very hostile provision in the Administration's Budget proposal (for fiscal year 2003) that proposed to change the way the Medicaid rebate is calculated. The result of the OMB proposal contained in the President's Budget would be to extract substantially larger mandatory rebates from pharmaceutical companies. We immediately confirmed that this change was made solely to generate larger rebates and therefore Medicaid savings for the Federal government. According to government economists, the proposal would reduce pharmaceutical sales by $31 billion. The Democrats took advantage of the OMB proposal to attack House Republicans and no one wants to go through that again.

We ask you to intervene and request that OMB not include this Medicaid rebate proposal or any other "surprise attacks" involving Medicaid pricing in the President's upcoming budget proposal.

III. DOMESTIC DRUG PATENTS (A.K.A. "REFORMING THE HATCH-WAXMAN ACT")

Last year, Senators McCain, Schumer, and Edwards teamed up to attack the brand name pharmaceutical industry for "gaming" drug patents to frustrate generic competition (S. 812). S. 812 passed the Senate in July; the House refused to take it up. PhRMA was preparing for the 2003 legislative debate on this issue when President Bush held an October 21 White House Rose Garden ceremony to announce a proposed FDA drug patent regulation to correct such "gaming." Any objective analysis of the October 21 regulation would agree with President Bush's statement that it strongly addresses the "gaming" of drug patents. To that end, while we will work to improve the proposed regulation through the FDA rulemaking process, and we are working to unify Congressional Republicans behind the President's action and to therefore oppose the McCain-Schumer-Edwards legislation in 2003.

PhRMA strongly believes that the President's move to address drug patents and the related Hatch-Waxman Act "gaming" issues through regulation and the stated intention of the Administration that this move was designed to avoid legislation has changed the picture. This has been reinforced in multiple conversations at the highest levels of the Administration, including with Deputy WH CoS Josh Bolton, FDA General Counsel Dan Troy, and just last week with new FDA Commissioner Mark McClellan, who all told us that they are focused on making the regulation process work and to have it serve as a victory for the President. The alternative is to give a victory to John Edwards and Chuck Schumer, putting aside Senator McCain.

We are asking that, given the hard-hitting new FDA rule, the White House help us – behind the scenes, if necessary – avoid legislation in this area. Specifically, we are asking for your help in unifying key Congressional Republicans behind the President's choice to issue this regulation in order to avoid legislation. We hope you will call Senators Gregg, Frist and Hatch, and Congressman Tauzin. (Suggested message: "I hope you will support the President's proposed FDA rule and avoid any legislation in this area in the new Congress,")

Макроэкономика / Macroeconomics

by N. Gregory Mankiw, Hardcover 4th edition (July 1999)

In writing this book, Mankiw has tried to put himself in the position of someone seeing economics for the first time. The author's conversational writing style is superb for presenting the politics and science of economic theories to tomorrow's decision-makers. Because Mankiw wrote it for the students, the book stands out among all other principles books by intriguing students to apply an economic way of thinking in their daily lives. Receiving such a praise as "perhaps the best ever" book in economic principles, it's no wonder Mankiw's prize project has quickly become one of the most

by N. Gregory Mankiw, Paperback - 539 pages 2nd edition (2001)

Macroeconomics (as well as most other fields of economics, for that matter) is a subject which involves many graphs and diagrams. Mankiw's book was used in my intermediate course on macroeconomics and I was very satisfied with it. Its graphs are well laid out and contain lists of steps in the margins explaining how they were obtained. It is also easy to read. The examples provided are relevant and interesting, and the style is conducive to learning macroeconomics.

Government Debt / Государственный долг / янв. 1998 г., 84 с.

[Автор: Douglas W. Elmendorf, G. Mankiw] [Язык: Английский] [Формат: PDF] [Тип: Work. paper]

This paper surveys the literature on the macroeconomic effects of government debt. It begins by discussing the data on debt and deficits, including the historical time series, measurement issues, and projections of future fiscal policy. The paper then presents the conventional theory of government debt, which emphasizes aggregate demand in the short run and crowding out in the long run. It next examines the theoretical and empirical debate over the theory of debt neutrality called Ricardian equivalence. Finally, the paper considers the various normative perspectives about how the government should use its ability to borrow.

Professor N. Gregory Mankiw

Bio

N. Gregory Mankiw is Professor of Economics at Harvard University. As a student, he studied economics at Princeton University and MIT. As a teacher, he has taught macroeconomics, microeconomics, statistics, and principles of economics. He even spent one summer long ago as a sailing instructor on Long Beach Island.

Professor Mankiw is a prolific writer and a regular participant in academic and policy debates. His research includes work on price adjustment, consumer behavior, financial markets, monetary and fiscal policy, and economic growth.
