I've asked DOJ not to include the marital status information in their short-form resumes from now on. That will prevent this info from making it into the public announcements.

Also, this has a typo in it: it's Solicitor, not Soliciter. . .

In the future, public announcements about judges should not include "marital status" (see below). I will ask DOJ not to include that information in the short-form resumes that they prepare. Also, announcements about judges should not state that they are appointed to serve "in the President's administration." Thanks.
